Greeks See Raid Threat

NICOSIA (UPI) — The Greek-Cypriot interior ministry Monday broadcast warnings to civilians to prepare air raid shelters as protection against possible Turkish bombing attacks.

The warning was broadcast in Greek over Cyprus Radio about three hours after Greek-Cypriot President Archbishop Makarios flew to Athens for crisis talks.

Makarios said he would discuss with Greek Premier George Papandreu the "oppressive measures" to impose a solution to the crisis outside the United Nations.

NO ENTRY

The Greek-Cypriot government rejected a United Nations appeal for freedom of movement for its peacekeeping forces on this bitterly-divided island. In reply to the plea last Wednesday from UN secretary-general Thant, Makarios said:

"Where requirements of absolute security on matters of state defense and security are involved, it is not possible to permit entry of UN patrols."

INBOUND ARMS

Thant's appeal followed refusal of Greek-Cypriots to allow UN troops within the harbor area at Limassol. Trucks heavily laden with what appeared to be arms have been sighted leaving the closely-guarded dockside.

Gallery Collapses

13 Miners Trapped In French Cave-In

CHAMPAGNOLE, France (AP) — The collapse of an underground gallery deep in a limestone mine entombed 13 men Monday, a mine official said. Faint tapping picked up by a microphone gave new hope that the sealed-in workers were still alive.

DEAD-END TUNNELS

First official reports said 16 men were entombed, but the mine official said a recheck showed 13 were below when the rock fall occurred.

The collapse of a 1,600-foot section cut off the workers inside 30 miles of dead-end tunnels.

DIG BY FLOODLIGHT

Tearful relatives watched as rescuers dug by floodlight to sink a ventilation shaft into an intact portion of the mine.

The supersensitive microphone and earphone equipment arrived at the scene late Monday. Specialists said they detected what seemed to be blows by a pickaxe into a wall. The sound came

MP Offers to Get Banks 'I'll Bring Him Back by Ear'

OTTAWA (CP) — A former RCMP officer offered in the Commons Monday night to haul Hal Banks back to Canada "by the ear."

Jack Bigg (PC-Athabasca) said the former president's hold on the Seafarers' International Union of Canada and his criminal activities are just examples of poor labor laws and poor planning. "I'm not afraid of Hal Banks," he told the Commons. "If you want him back here, give me the job. Give me a leave of absence and I'll bring him back here by the ear."

And, said Mr. Bigg, a lawyer and former RCMP officer in Saskatchewan, if Mr. Banks is as bulky as Douglas Fisher (NDP—Fort Arthur) "I'll get some of my pals and skid him in here."

Banks is being sought to serve a 30-day jail term in Quebec for contempt of court. There have been reports that he is in the United States.

Mr. Bigg, arguing in favor of a federal labor code ensuring the secret ballot in all union votes and a right-to-work clause, said the public is "fed up with paying us (MPs) $18,000 a year for sitting around here chewing the fat and gossiping."

"I'm not sure I want your election that you're always throwing at us," he said to the Liberal benches.

"I was earning an honest living when I came down here."

Best-Selling Author Garbage Man of Year

NEW YORK (AP) — A New England garbage collector who wrote a best-selling book about the Second World War was named Garbage Man of the Year Monday.

James H. Fahey of Waltham, Mass., received the accolade from the Refuse Removal Journal. He has been a garbage collector for 12 years.

Fahey is donating proceeds of his book, Pacific War Diary—1942-1945, to a town in south India for construction of a Roman Catholic church.

Election Time All at Once?

OTTAWA (CP) — The unsettled political situation in Canada and the constitution of the United States may be steering the two countries on a collision course, so far as election campaigns are concerned.

Observers see a distinct possibility that Canadian voters may be called to the polls this autumn at about the same time U.S. voters cast their ballots for Congress and the presidency.

While there may only be an outside chance that a Canadian election will be called for Monday, Nov. 2, political sources here shudder at the thought of the conflicting stresses and strains that would be involved.

The U.S. election, by law, is Tuesday, Nov. 3.

With U.S. newspapers, magazines and radio and television broadcasts spilling over into Canada, the average Canadian could be swamped with the vote appeals of Lester B. Pearson, John G. Diefenbaker, Lyndon B. Johnson and Barry M. Goldwater, not to mention T. C. Douglas, Robert Thompson, Real Caouette and any minority candidates who enter the presidential race.

NOT THIS CENTURY

Not since the turn of the century, when Sir Wilfrid Laurier's Liberals were comfortably in power in Ottawa, have there been Canadian and U.S. elections within a month or so of each other. The closest was in 1940, when Canadians voted in March and Americans in November.

Liberal party sources concede that a protracted opposition filibuster could force a vote.

SAIGON (Reuters) — The United States will pour more men and equipment into South Viet Nam to bolster the struggle against the Communist Viet Cong guerrillas, it was announced here Monday.

The South Vietnamese government announcement said the U.S. would send more military and civilian advisers plus more support facilities.

POLICY UNCHANGED

But increased aid does not mean there has been a change in U.S. policy, the government said.

The announcement followed two hours of talks between South Viet Nam's premier, Maj.-Gen. Nguyen Khanh and U.S. Ambassador Gen. Maxwell Taylor and his deputy, Alexis Johnson.

It confirmed earlier reports from Washington that President Johnson had ordered a step-up in the war against the Viet Cong.

16,000 ALREADY

The U.S. already has about 16,000 men in South Viet Nam, serving as advisers, as training personnel for local forces and as combat advisers in action against the Viet Cong in the field.

Washington reports said Johnson has decided to send between 5,000 and 6,000 more military personnel in a major effort to crush the Viet Cong.

ATTACKS?

U.S. officials have not ruled out attacks on North Viet Nam, which backs the Viet Cong, but they have said that the war in South Viet Nam has not reached such a critical point.

(In Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia, South Vietnamese defense minister Maj. - Gen. Tran Thien Khien said there is a strong underground movement in Communist North Viet Nam ready to launch full-scale sabotage there.)

'WAIT, SEE'

(He told questioners South Viet Nam would "wait and see" whether to start a full-scale attack on the north in support of this movement.)

The government announcement said the increase in the number of advisers would take place immediately.

British Stand:

Peace Before Talks

VIENTIANE (AP) — Royal army troops battled Communist assault units Monday at two points on Highway 13, which links Vientiane with Luang Prabang, the royal capital 140 miles north of this city.

A communique said Pathet Lao and Viet Minh (North Vietnamese) forces staged the attacks to "camouflage their threat to the front at Muong Soui," a neutralist stronghold on Highway 7 between the Communist-held Plaine des Jarres and Highway 13.

The defenders were reported to have captured 22 prisoners and seized or destroyed five of the Communists' heavy guns.

Targets were Khou Cacham, 13 miles north of the junction of Highways 7 and 13, and Pha Tang, 30 miles south of the junction.

Mexico Eyes Cuba

MEXICO CITY (UPI) — President Adolfo Lopez Mateos and his advisers Monday began a series of meetings to decide if Mexico will abide by a hemispheric call for sanctions against Cuba.

Foreign Minister Jose Goriastiza, who did not attend the Organization of American States meeting in Washington at which Cuba was condemned for aggression, said an official statement might be issued Wednesday.

MOSCOW (UPI) — British Foreign Secretary R. A. Butler said Monday night he would not agree to a Soviet call for a 14-nation Geneva conference on Laos until pro-Communist forces there acceded to a cease-fire and withdrew from positions they have seized from the neutralists.

Butler laid down the British conditions for the conference shortly after arriving here for talks with Soviet Premier Khrushchev on the growing crisis in Laos and Southeast Asia.

Britain and the Soviet are the co-chairmen of the 1962 and 1954 Geneva accords guaranteeing Laotian neutrality.

The Soviet Union Sunday said a new Geneva conference, attended by the 14 nations which signed the 1954 agreement carving up what used to be French Indochina, should be held next month.

Accused Hangs Self In Cell

VANCOUVER (CP) — The body of Alex Carlson of Vancouver was found hanging in his cell at Oakalla prison Monday, three days after he was committed for trial on a charge of attempting to murder his wife.

A prison official said Carlson, 52, an unemployed handyman, used a bed sheet to take his own life.

Magistrate Lorne Jackson had committed Carlson on Friday for trial after hearing evidence that he shot his wife, Rose, twice in the back with a rifle at a downtown hotel.

The couple separated in mid-June.

Plea Goes Unanswered

FAIRBANKS, Alaska (AP) — A young Fairbanks woman said Monday she watched her soldier fiance drown Sunday while a group of men ignored her cries for help.

Luanne Saario, 21, and Bernard L. Snyder, 18, were picnicking when he decided to take a swim.

Snyder developed trouble in the pond and Miss Saario tried to reach him but couldn't. "Then I asked some people to help but they just stood there."

Riotous Weekend

Troops Stand Ready For New Outbreaks

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (UPI) — National Guard troops with rifles and bayonets ringed Negro sections of the city today, prepared to move into action if needed to help quell new outbreaks of racial violence blamed for four deaths during the riotous weekend.

Gov. Rockefeller, who sent the troops here, flew into the city Monday afternoon unannounced to inspect the riot damage and consult with police and national guard leaders on the tense situation.

City manager Porter Homer renewed a citywide curfew but set its hours from 8:30 p.m. to 6 a.m. The weekend curfew had extended from 8 p.m. to 7 a.m. The new curfew will remain in effect indefinitely.

A ban on the sale of liquor, effective throughout Monroe County, was committed through 3 p.m. Tuesday. The request was made by city officials and approved by the State Liquor Authority.

Three courtrooms were required to handle the arraignments of some of the estimated 755 persons arrested during three days.

The Professional

Lyndon B. Johnson

By William S. White

Second of a series.

Much that is too complicated has been written of the early morning-after of that urgent night at Los Angeles when John F. Kennedy at last defeated Lyndon B. Johnson for the Presidential nomination. What really happened was quite simple.

Master Politician in New Role Faces Test of Moderation, Reason

Kennedy, recognizing the fact that his nomination had been made possible only by the support of iron-handed urban — and largely Catholic — Democratic leaders from the North and East, told Johnson just about this:

"You have long declared for moderation and mutual tolerance in the party — for a time when there would be 'no North, no South, no East, no West' but one united party and country. If you are not on the ticket with me, that ticket is going to lose, and you know it."

Some of Johnson's oldest friends, the late Speaker of the House Sam Rayburn

among them, found it impossible to understand how perhaps the greatest master ever of the most difficult of all political forums, the United States Senate, should now sit lower at the party table than one of the most junior members of that body.

These urgently pressed their advice: "Lyndon, don't do it. You can't do it. Just stay on as majority leader of the Senate."

Johnson heard them out; he did not reflect long. He agreed from that moment onward to use his sword under Kennedy's command. And use it he did, notably and effectively in the South, and most notably and effectively among Protestant groups everywhere which were in fear of Kennedy's religion.

There was an inevitable outcry from Johnson's supporters, from all over the country but notably from his native South. Many honestly and deeply believed that the able man had unwisely accepted a subordinate place to a much younger, much less experienced, and much less tried and trustworthy political campaigner and leader.

There was harsh and sullen hurt in the South; even mutters that "Lyndon has sold out."

It was said by some, in their

All Skin Cancers Don't Look Alike

By JOSEPH MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: What does skin cancer look like? What are the symptoms?—MM.

I'll explain what to look out for—although I can't tell you how to decide whether a given lesion is or isn't skin cancer.

Incidentally, more than ninety per cent of skin cancers can be cured if they are treated reasonably early.

Skin cancers aren't all alike in appearance. A warty type of growth is one. And likewise a sort of horny growth.

Still another is a "sore" that isn't sore, and keeps expanding very slowly, and seems to "heal" or crust over in the centre, while the edge, as the spot expands, looks raw but isn't sore.

A mole that changes in any way, perhaps grows larger, or is constantly irritated (such as at the edge of a collar, under a belt or the edge of a girdle or anything like that), or bleeds easily—can be a sign of cancer. Just about everything I have described can be from some other cause.

When you get right down to cases, there isn't any way you can look at a spot on the skin and say whether it is or isn't cancer. A biopsy will give the answer.

Any doctor can make a very shrewd guess just from looking. The specialists can be even shrewder. But only in severe and advanced cases can they give a snap judgment and feel sure they are right. By advanced, I mean a skin cancer which the patient has had for months, or a year, or several years, and ignored.

With skin cancer, you don't expect any symptoms except what you can see. If you wait for pain or other symptoms, you have waited too long. (Even in such cases, however, cure may be possible, but who wants to take that risk?)

Dear Dr. Molner: What exercises will aid in strengthening my son's shoulders? He is 10 and inclined to be round-shouldered.—MRS. L.G.

Push-ups. Chin-ups. Swimming. Most arm exercises of any type. Dumbbells. Holding the head erect and shoulders back. Shovelling snow. Mowing the lawn. Raking leaves. Or any exercises from scrubbing the kitchen floor to wrestling with other boys, so long as the arm and chest muscles have to work hard.

YMCA Summer Camp Still Has 40 Openings

There is still room for 40 pretty low at present," he said, "but we don't do it on the basis of how much money we have. It's more a case of finding the money after we've found the boy who needs it."

For $50, the Y will provide some healthy outdoor fun for any boy, and in the bargain will assure the parents of two weeks of peace and quiet.

If two boys go from a family, there is a $10 reduction, and a further $5 for a third boy. And those who can't afford the price still get a chance to attend through a sponsorship system.

PAY FULL COST

Service clubs and individuals act as sponsors, paying the cost of the two-week stay.

George Warner, camp director, said that cases worthy of sponsorship are referred to the Y by welfare workers, family court and other social organizations.

Camp director Ron Hayward said that "we might have room to squeeze a couple of boys in, but that's all—one or two."

MONEY COMES LAST

"When a boy is recommended, we accept him and look for the money afterwards."

"The other major boys' camp, the Victoria Boys' Club Camp Kalitan, is virtually full for the remainder of the summer."

TENT CAMP

Kalitan is a tent camp (as compared to the bunkhouses of Camp Thunderbird) and therefore costs only $20 for a 10-day stay.

Boys 8-14 are eligible for Kalitan, while Thunderbird accepts boys only between the ages of 9 and 14.

Persecution Charged

Liberals Raked By Opposition On SIU Issue

OTTAWA (CP) — Opposition frontbenches raked the government Monday for its handling of Great Lakes labor strife, charging in the Commons that rackteering and persecution of seamen still is going on despite federal intervention.

The three maritime union trustees appointed last fall to clean up the Seafarers' International Union of Canada drew a large share of the criticism.

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker, backed by several colleagues, called for a Parliamentary inquiry into what the trustees had done since Parliament appointed them.

'GRAND MOGUL'

Parliament had the right to know why Leonard (Red) McLaughlin now sits as "the grand mogul" of the SIU, the man who was Hal Banks' trusted operator, who carried out Banks' tyrannical directions.

Despite government denials, the SIU still operated a do-nothing list under McLaughlin, Canadians wanted to free labor from any domination by the Banks gang.

A LEOPARD?

"When did McLaughlin change his spots? ... He was a leopard in labor relations and the SIU. Has he changed? If he has, it speaks volumes for the beneficence of the minister of labor."

Evidence indicated that a total authoritarianism was operated by McLaughlin, whose succession to the SIU presidency had been acquiesced in by the trustees and the government.

IN DRIVER'S SEAT

Mr. Justice T. G. Norris had suggested the possibility of charging McLaughlin with conspiracy. Now McLaughlin was in the driver's seat.

"What manner of contempt of Parliament is this? ... How they must laugh."

WINNIPEG (CP) — A contracting syndicate and its manager were fined a total of $2,000 Monday on charges arising from a May 20 blasting accident which killed two men.

Ramsay and Bird pleaded guilty to three charges under the Manitoba mines act and were fined $500 on each. Manager M. T. Irving was fined $300 after he pleaded guilty one charge.

Leslie Andrews, 63, of Birds Hill, and John Fleming, 39, of Winnipeg, were killed when they were buried under tons of fallen gravel.

The victims and two other workers had laid two dynamite charges against the walls of the gravel pit. One of them failed to go off and the men returned to see what had happened.

Girl Buried Stolen Body Found

SKOKIE, Ill. (AP) — The body of a 14-year-old girl, stolen from its coffin in a Skokie funeral home was found Sunday in the middle of an alley in Evanston, a neighboring suburb north of Chicago.

The nude body of pretty Theresa Koerigen was found by a motorist driving to his garage. The body lay about three miles from the funeral home.

Meanwhile, Skokie police were questioning a 16-year-old Evanston boy who, police said, had been pestering Theresa for dates. Also questioned was a man who had been seen loitering in the vicinity of the funeral home for several days. Both had been taken into custody before the body was found. No charges had been made against either.

Skokie village manager Bernard Marsh said Theresa's body did not appear to have been molested. It was identified at Skokie Valley Hospital by the girl's father, Leo Koerigen, an auto sales firm executive. The girl lived in Skokie with her mother, Margaret. The parents are divorced.

The body was buried Monday in a cemetery in suburban Des Plaines.

Roy Haben, operator of the funeral home, saw that Theresa's body was missing at 6:30 a.m. Saturday when he went to prepare it for a prayer service before the funeral mass in St. Peter's Roman Catholic Church.

The Koerigen girl died Wednesday in hospital where she was taken when she complained of numbness after swimming Tuesday.

An autopsy showed she died of a cerebral hemorrhage. There was no indication that she suffered an injury to cause the hemorrhage, and no inquest was planned by the coroner's office.

A funeral mass for Theresa was solemnized Saturday in St. Peter's Church, across the street from the funeral home. There was no burial service.

Ratification Awaited

First Columbia Dam Work Starts Soon

VANCOUVER (CP) — The stage is set for an immediate go-ahead on the first of three Columbia River dams when a treaty with the United States is ratified, a B.C. Hydro spokesman said Monday.

Tenders have been called for the $35,000,000 Duncan Lake dam so construction can begin as soon as possible to meet a treaty deadline of April 1, 1968.

Final step in ratification, the formal exchange of notes between the two countries, is Oct. 1. The Duncan Lake contract will be awarded immediately afterwards.

Tenders for Duncan Lake will be opened Sept. 15. The earth-fill dam near Nelson will be 120 feet high and 2,600 feet long, creating a 28-mile reservoir.

Hydro said an average of 370 men will work on the project. The contract includes building two 1,000-foot tunnels to divert the Columbia around the dam site.

Moby Doll Proves Right Name

VANCOUVER (CP) — Moby is definitely a doll.

Vancouver's captive killer whale, the world's only penned specimen, was dubbed Moby Doll by her captor Dr. Murray Newman, Vancouver aquarium curator.

But doubt was raised later whether the 17-foot mammal was a mature young lady or an immature young bull.

Sunday, after the 2½-ton prize had been referred to as Moby Doll, or Maybe Dick, or Moby Maybe, aquarium officials determined the whale is definitely a lady and the name Moby Doll stuck.

Vince Penfold, assistant aquarium curator, said he was able to get close enough to take a discreet look and dispel doubts once and for all.

Revised Toll Lists 89 Dead

OPORTO (AP) — A revised death toll of 89 was announced Monday night in Portugal's worst railway disaster, the derailment of a single car loaded far beyond its capacity. Hospital officials, after a recheck of hospitals and morgues, reported nearly 100 other persons were injured.

The rear car came uncoupled at a curve Sunday night, crashed from side to side against walls bordering the track, then barreled down an embankment with a human cargo of more than 250 terrified passengers. The car smashed into a stone abutment and stopped.

Getting Things Done

THE HON. E. DAVIE FULTON, leader of the British Columbia Conservative Party and former federal cabinet minister, has offered a three-point plan designed to help snap Canada's Parliament out of its present "do-nothing" attitude.

Speaking at the Canadian Institute on Public Affairs' 33rd Couchiching Conference yesterday, Mr. Fulton took note of the fact that throughout Canada today there is a widespread dissatisfaction with the performance of Parliament.

"A sense of uneasiness, of extreme disquiet, has taken hold of Canada and has ripened into a hostility on the part of Canadians toward the fractured Parliament they elected," he said.

The main complaint of the electorate Mr. Fulton found was that Parliament is not getting things done... "in the sense of getting business completed while at the same time being true to its role and responsibility to judge and decide upon government policy and to hold the government responsible in the name of 17 million Canadians."

How, he asked, can this situation be corrected? He then offered this solution for consideration: The improvement of the system of dealing with the business of the House and country; the provision of every Member of Parliament with the means to do his job, and the acceptance by all MPs of certain restraints and self-disciplines.

In dealing with his first point, Mr. Fulton argued that greater emphasis should be placed upon the committee system by giving such committees greater authority in reviewing and examining government spending proposals and programs.

If this were done, he said, committee members (representing each party) would be able to examine not only the minister on his policy but also to question departmental officials as to all the background and the facts and considerations involved in the policy which gives rise to the spending program presented.

Such a system, Mr. Fulton said, would save considerable time on the floor of Parliament itself.

In the matter of providing the MP with means to do his job, Mr. Fulton expressed the opinion that more help should be given the individual member. For $18,000 a year, he said, Canada expects an MP to be a champion of his riding, an ombudsman to its people, a lobbyist for its interests, and make a thoughtful and informed contribution to national affairs. "all the while hobbling him by restricting him to one stenographer."

According to Mr. Fulton, MPs should not only be provided with more office help, but should also be given more assistance by their national party headquarters and found an office in their own constituencies.

If all this were instituted Mr. Fulton thought there would be little difficulty in persuading them to accept certain disciplines and self-restraints in the House: among them a permanent speaker who would be the final arbiter on questions of order and privilege, and an "allocation of time" system on all major items of government legislation.

Though as much can be said in favor of Mr. Fulton's "reforms" as can be said against them, his suggestions will at least open for public debate a problem which must soon be aired if we are to get Parliament moving. For if Parliament stagnates, so does the nation.

Call for Rescue

FIRES ARE respecters of neither people nor buildings but the outbreak that consumed the stock of Goodwill Enterprises comes especially hard on the group of handicapped citizens who depend on this agency for work and a place in the sun of daily living.

This project is one of the most desirable in terms of human rehabilitation, providing as it does an outlet for the activity of individuals physically or otherwise impaired and thus deprived of normal employment and sense of purpose.

A call has gone out for the replenishment of repairable materials and goods on which Goodwill must rely for its operation, the donations by which the community has already shown its sympathetic interest in this valuable compassionate work. The sooner the lost stock is replaced the quicker hardship will be alleviated. One feels sure that citizens in general will come to the rescue with ample and speedy response.

Whose Weather?

AT A TIME when everyone is complaining about the on-again, off-again semblance of summer, it is especially interesting that man-made changes in climate are said to be in prospect. Not on the scale of local rain-making, either, but of global consequence.

A committee of leading American scientists appointed by the National Science Foundation, according to The Insider's Newsletter, is studying various possible techniques for overhauling the weather.

These including damming the Bering Strait to warm the waters of the North Pacific, spreading a chemical film on the oceans to retard evaporation and thus reduce rainfall on some land areas at certain times, and boating the polar icecaps with carbon black to alter the radiation balance.

All of this may appear somewhat far-fetched, considering the hardly-imaginable immensity of the measures contemplated.

But we are living in an age when a scheme to change the whole water system of the North American continent and to have ocean-going ships travel across Canada by canals and locks is given a serious hearing; when the seemingly impossible has already been accomplished in the realm of space, for that matter.

One thus cannot wryly laugh off the chance that in a few decades men will be rearranging the world's climates to a significant extent to suit their needs.

This supposition immediately raises the question, however, of which and whose needs would be given foremost consideration. It is unthinkable that the United States should be able unilaterally to decide on changes with profound effect throughout the northern hemisphere, or equally that the Soviet Union with similar massive capability might do so with results more to its own liking, but not necessarily to that of everyone else.

Clearly if man is to tame nature on this new front it will have to be by common consent and agreement, for the atmosphere belongs to no one.

Indeed not the least of the good effects of the American study should be the international co-operation that will be invoked if as a result it appears certain that man can do something about the weather besides complain about it.

"The patient will have to await a detailed study of the country's tax structure."

Thinking Aloud

By TOM TAYLOR

SOMEWHERE in a dusty Canadian attic, perhaps, says the Canadian Military Journal, there lies a narrow woollen scarf unique in its kind.

It was knitted by a queen and set alongside the Victoria Cross as a symbol of gallantry.

You won't find it listed among the official decorations of the military realm but, apparently, the distinction is authentic. Unlike the "Queen's (or King's) Corporal" of varying discussion in this column over the years, a being still at least half-legendary, the scarf in question is documented.

The CMJ shows a picture of it on the cover of its summer edition, a defence department photo which validates the award.

Described as knitted in khaki-colored wool with the initials "V.R.I." on one knot of wool, the scarf measures six inches wide with fringed ends. Attached to it, although not shown in this picture, was a small metal cross set in a wreath.

And the royal hands which created this wrap were those of Queen Victoria.

It was this queen in her younger years who took thought to create the VC, the medal without peer in the lexicon of military award. Seemingly in her old age she was still encompasped of military renown.

For it was in the last year of her life, at the age of 82, that the queen after whom this city is named knitted five woollen scarves, each bearing the royal cipher, to present to soldiers of the colonial forces serving in the Boer War.

She died before she could do so in person, but that number of scarves were awarded, one of them to a member of the special Canadian contingent in that campaign.

Designated as the "Queen's Scarf of Honor," this unusual decoration was given high precedence in the scale of military bestowal. According to the CMJ it was accorded ranking alongside the VC, and in some circles set even higher in achievement. The conditions of the scarf award were that the nominee must have entered the war or army as a private, first be recommended for the Victoria Cross, and be elected by vote of his comrades in the field.

Some men are recommended for the VC and given a lesser medal, but the scarf apparently reversed the usual order of such things. Its rarity is thus enhanced.

Only the location of two of these "Queen's Scarves" is known, one in a bank vault in Tanganyika and the other in a regimental museum on the Thames. The whereabouts of the Canadian scarf, like the soldier who won it 64 years ago, is unknown.

This soldier, the CMJ recites, was an Ottawa man, Private Richard Rowland Thompson, aged 22 years. Born in Cork, Ireland, he immigrated to Canada and joined the 43rd Ottawa and Carleton Rifles, as a medical assistant. When a special service battalion of the Royal Canadian Regiment was formed for service in the Boer War, Private Thompson became a member of it.

He was recommended for the VC by his CO, Lt.-Col. W. D. Otter, and later as a commissioned officer for the DSO as well.

All that trace of either this resolute soldier or the "Queen's Scarf" that spoke his valor has been lost. Perhaps the story is resurrected by the Canadian Military Journal will have responsive result.

Changing Circumstances

Hazard to Soviet Policy

By ISAAC DEUTSCHER
(Second of Two Parts.)

THE government of the Soviet Union not afraid that the increased purchasing power of 18 million citizens is going to have inflationary effects? Will the supply of consumer goods keep pace with the rise in the earnings? Of course the fact that most of the benefits go to those employed in the distribution of consumer goods and in public services is itself calculated to make the supply of such goods and services more efficient and perhaps even more abundant.

The output of industrial consumer goods is growing quite rapidly. The food situation, however, is less promising because it reflects the unsatisfactory state of agriculture. The deficit of meat and fats has been chronic. Even if the grain shortage has been only temporary this year's harvest will be much better than last year's but it will not be overabundant.

There have been droughts in some parts of the Ukraine and European Russia and on the virgin lands the soil erosion could not yet have been made good.

The pension scheme for farmers is intended as an incentive to production but as this is a long-term incentive it may take years before its effects are felt. In the meantime Mr. Khrushchev has cracked a whip over the collective farmers, telling them that the government cannot go on paying them the present prices for grain which are twice as high as those it pays the state farms.

The rise in earnings means that the effective demands for foodstuffs is going to rise steeply and to avoid a wild scramble the government is evidently contemplating large-scale imports from abroad. It is also planning to stockpile grain in quantities sufficient to cover anything from 50 to 100 per cent of the annual urban consumption—that is from 25 to 50 million tons of grain.

At least part of this reserve will have to be obtained from Canada, Australia and other countries including the United States from which the U.S.S.R. bought 12 million tons of grain last year.

Eastern Europe too will have to go on covering its grain deficits by purchases in the West. Thus the economic policy which Mr. Khrushchev presented to the Supreme Soviet presupposes a further expansion and intensification of trade between the U.S.S.R. and the West.

This in turn presupposes a lot of things: The West's especially the United States—willingness to maintain the détente to trade with Communist countries, to lift embargoes and to effect further cuts in defence budgets. If these preconditions were not to materialize, Mr. Khrushchev's policy would be suspended in a vacuum and the Soviet economy would be exposed to dangerous inflationary pressures.

It is clear from all this that Senator Goldwater's sudden and triumphant emergence in the role of Republican candidate for the American presidency must have a strong impact upon the himself. He is known to be critical of the Khrushchevite handling of the Russo-Chinese controversy and to favor a less belligerent and less offensive approach to Peking.

The question is whether the Maoists are at all inclined to respond to any conciliatory approach. They have been growing more and more aggressive in their anti-Khrushchevism and may now be bent on extracting from the American elections the maximum ideological advantage for themselves and the maximum embarrassment for Mr. Khrushchev.

Mr. Khrushchev and his advisers must wonder whether President Johnson will or can continue the Kennedy policy vis-a-vis the Soviet Union or whether he will seek to obtain victory over Mr. Goldwater by demonstrating to the electorate that no one can outdo him, the Democratic president, in anti-Communism.

Moscow must in any case begin to reckon with a prospect which its ideologies have till now dismissed as unreal—the prospect of a possible resumption of the cold war and of the arms race and of a return to austerity at home, to tighter belts and tighter discipline.

Should this prospect begin to materialize the Russians would also have to move much more cautiously in their controversy with the Chinese and to avoid aggravating it. Just now the Maoists are blaming Mr. Khrushchev even for Mr. Goldwater's success. Speaking of the collapse of all the illusions connected with the Khrushchev version of peaceful co-existence, "Goldwaterism," they say, "is what you get when you seek to appease American imperialism."

The taunt is highly embarrassing to Mr. Khrushchev. Many Communist leaders have anyhow held that he has overplayed his hand against Mao, and the latest events in the U.S. will strengthen them in this conviction.

Will Moscow then, under the rude shock from San Francisco, try on the quiet to mend its relations with Peking?

THIS is hardly the mood of Mr. Khrushchev, but Mr. Brezhnev or Mr. Mikoyan may well try conciliation. Mr. Mikoyan is particularly well suited for the job though he is a convinced adherent of "peaceful co-existence" and is as much opposed to Maoism as Mr. Khrushchev.

Information on Tape

Science Speeds Mapping

By JOHN DAVY
From London

HISTORY is about chaps. Geography is about maps. The 2,000 geographers at their 30th international congress—the first to be held in Britain—would certainly assent to Hilaire Belloc's dictum. And map-making is undergoing its own scientific revolution.

Maps used to be compiled by patient men plodding the country with theodolites, pencils and paper. Today, high speed aircraft can take detailed stereoscopic pictures of half Britain in a few hours. Automatic machines can translate these into contoured drawings, and mapping data can be stored on magnetic tape, to be played back selectively as needed.

But geographers' maps are far more than glorified photographs of the landscape. They are tools for presenting geographical information in a compact form.

Modern maps have gone far beyond the familiar representations of rainfall and vegetation. The superb Atlas of Britain published last year by the Oxford Clarendon Press—the nearest thing to a true British national atlas yet produced—contains in its index, to take only one letter, references to: salt, sand, sawmills, sedimentary rocks, sheep, sheepbuilding, slaughterhouses, snow, soils, spirit distilling, spruces, steel, sugar beet, su-garcia, and many others. One of the great breakthroughs in map-making is a system for storing all this information on magnetic tape. By coupling it to a drawing machine, the user can then demand an instant map showing, for instance, the relation between oak plantations, sawmills, railway lines and furniture factories.

A machine which can do this, made by a Glasgow electronics firm under a contract from the department of scientific and industrial research, is to be installed after the congress in the Clarendon Press's cartographical department, where its potentialities can be fully explored.

At present maps are "fair drawn" by skilled draughtsmen from draft maps. It may take three months to two years to produce the finished version, complete with colors, place names, etc., ready for the printer. The new machine cuts all this work direct from the draft, storing all the data on magnetic tape. This can then be fed into a drawing machine to produce precise maps for the printer within hours or days of completion.

Washington Calling

Almost Comic Indignation

By MARQUIS CHILDS

WHEN it first was known that Sen. Barry Goldwater hoped to spend his post-convention vacation in Germany two of his Republican colleagues in the Senate were appalled. They felt that for him to go anywhere near Berchtesgaden, Hitler's mountain retreat, would be the worst possible identification for the campaign ahead.

But they were reluctant to approach Goldwater. They went to the minority leader, Sen. Everett McKinley Dirksen, to ask him if he would suggest to the man certain to be the party's nominee that this was an unhappy choice for a vacation.

The only word for the episode, and particularly when it is put alongside the Der Spiegel interview, is incredible. The New York Times reported from Bonn that earlier Goldwater had given an interview to the Soldaten Zeitung, an extreme right-wing, and militantly nationalist weekly published in Munich. In the June 28 issue the newspaper carried a banner headline in English: "Welcome, Mr. Republican."

From Goldwater's own personal view the German vacation had a perfectly reasonable motive. His good friend, Lt. Gen. William Quinn, commander of the Seventh Army, had invited the Goldwaters to come over for a rest when the turmoil of San Francisco was ended. Quinn is rated as exerting an important influence on Goldwater's military concepts.

Now the candidate is furious at the news media for reporting—distorting and lying, he says—his motives in wanting to visit Germany. What angered Goldwater in the initial Columbia Broadcasting System report was the statement that he intended to address a right-wing German group during his stay. He says this was untrue and he wanted only to relax with his friends.

The whole strange episode shows that Goldwater has not begun to learn that as the leader and the symbol of one of the two political parties his every act and every word will be held up to the most-searching scrutiny. He sometimes gives the impression he does not care.

The word for Der Spiegel's interview, published as reports of the proposed vacation came out, is also incredible. Of all the statements the candidate made none is more extraordinary than this: "Had not Germany in both wars been subjected to the supreme command of men—or a man in any case—who didn't understand war, I think Germany would have won both of them."

Europeans—left, right and centre—have had a lot to say about the Republican choice of Goldwater. This runs the gamut from cries of horror from the left-liberal press to approval from the neo-Fascists of Italy and the Franco press in Spain. While it is probably impossible, it would be wise if in the campaign ahead the United States could ignore these outside kibitzers. As never before, this is the moment of truth when without flinching Americans must confront their own failures of omission and commission.

News and commentary at home in the United States are something else again. Republican indignation at the press has an almost-comic sound. This is a total reversal of nature. It comes after years of domination of the American nation's press by the Republicans, with the press part of the establishment that the Goldwaterites now scorn. Franklin Roosevelt never failed to get a roar of approbation when he jeered at the "one-party press" and its lack of influence in his campaigns.

The lessons the candidate of a national party must learn are painful indeed. You are assailed from every side. The attacks often seem not only unfair but to the victim deliberately vicious. There is, however, one luxury the candidate cannot afford—public anger, reprisal and retaliation. This response serves only to make him more vulnerable.

No one knew this better than Harry Truman who was ridiculed and vilified as few men in the presidency have been. When he ran in 1948 as the underdog with no chance to win, according to the polls, the press and the columnists opposed him. In words that Goldwater might take to heart Truman once expressed himself on the rain of abuse falling on a presidential candidate: "If you can't stand the heat stay out of the kitchen."

Geography is still about maps—but geographers will have to work fast to keep up with the new machines turning them out. (OFNS Copyright)

About South America

Mistaken Notions

By GEORGE G. VINCENT

(Who recently returned to Victoria after a year-long, 50,000-mile tour of South America with his wife and child. This is the first instalment of a two-part article.)

SINCE our return to Canada the assumption that South American governments are "democratic" or "dictatorships," the "goodies" or the "baddies." In fact, democracy, as we know it, is generally non-existent, except in Chile and Uruguay.

For the rest, the facade and the intent may be good, but it is the absurdly top-heavy armed forces combined with the vested interests of the incredibly wealthy ruling family groups or a monolithic ruling party who usually decide in the end who shall govern, whatever the real election results may be.

Then there's the widely-held view that political turmoil, nationalization, land-seizures and "Anti-Americanism" are all due to "the Communists." With its violent extremes of wealth and poverty, South America is sitting on a volcano and there are, of course, Communist agents, highly trained and indefatigable. But nationalization is often just as much due to rightist as leftist action. Many of the upheavals are simply a result of vast masses of people living at bare subsistence level who haven't the faintest concept of or sympathy with Marxian ideologies, but who'd riot at the best of the devil if he promised to improve their lot.

Besides, American aid, which is largely siphoned off into the pockets of politicians and bureaucrats and their Swiss bank accounts, has the basic aim of heading off Communism. What better way of getting more, than dubbing any trouble that occurs as "Communist-inspired"—even quietly engineering, as cynics on the spot have suggested, fresh "Communist" scares when the stream of dollars tends to run dry?

We find many Canadians also believe that breaking up the great feudal estates and distributing them to the landless peasants is, in itself, an effective counter to the Communist threat. It isn't that simple. The peasants haven't the faintest idea how to manage the land when they get it. Illiterate, accustomed to desperate living from day to day and very short lives and with no idea of co-operative marketing, they kill and eat the breeding cattle, eat the seed-grain and settle down as before to farm at subsistence level. This has happened in Bolivia under its "socialist" regime. The original home of the potato, it now imports them from Chile!

They are not. Ever since the breakup of the Spanish colonial empire, their history has been one of internecine struggle, which, at the best, is only latent today. To the Peruvians and Bolivians, and to Chile who took on both and beat them, the War of the Pacific in the 1880s is perhaps more real than the two world wars and has left embers that still glow. Bolivia is pasted with angry posters demanding an outlet through Chile to the sea. Paraguay is still recovering from two terrible wars with neighbors that nearly wiped out her male population, the last in 1932. Chile and Argentina squabble over boundaries. Ideas of co-operative marketing, came close to fighting when we were there last year. Ecuador mourns her lost Amazonian provinces, largely wrested from her by a Peruvian war of aggression in 1942, when the outside world had other preoccupations. Canadians, too, tend to the fa-

Fond Farewell

Weight of Years Catches Churchill

LONDON (CP) — The House of Commons today pays fond and sentimental farewell to Sir Winston Churchill whose career as Member of Parliament dating back 64 years is drawing to a close.

It is a sad milestone in the life of the man who has tenaciously clung to his place in the house he loves, until now contemptuous of the weight of years and the devotion they bring.

Apparently only the growing awareness on his own part that his strength no longer permits him to continue has forced his hand in accepting the inevitability of retirement.

"I am a child of the House of Commons whose servant I am," he once said of himself, and these words were recalled again when, resigning as prime minister in 1955 at the age of 80, he refused the customary reward of a peerage to remain a commoner and a member of the Commons.

RECESS FRIDAY — Only now, approaching 90, has he finally yielded to the pleas of his wife, doctors, family and friends and surrendered to time. The House recesses Friday for the summer holiday and, having some major emergency, members will not be recalled to Westminster, except for dissolution, until after the October general election.

Bankrupt Ship Purchased

VANCOUVER (CP) — The bankrupt Greek freighter Ioannis Daskalelis was sold in an admiralty court auction here Monday for $168,000—$68,000 over the upset price set by Mr. Justice T. G. Norris two weeks ago.

A Panamanian company, Alrema Company Maratima SA, represented by Capt. Achilles Stachtiaris, vice president of Pacific Steamship Agency Incorporated of New York, tendered the highest bid.

Claims totalling more than $300,000 and mounting daily were registered against the former owners, Geotas Compania De Vapores de Panama, in 14 actions and the ship was ordered sold by the court.

After expenses involved in the sale are deducted the vessel's 24-man crew will have first call to get their back pay, about $30,000.

PUC Role Questioned

VANCOUVER (CP) — A Public Utilities Commission hearing into proposed bus fare increases opened Monday with a submission by municipalities that the commission has no jurisdiction to hear representations.

D. M. Goldie, lawyer for 10 municipalities in the Vancouver and Victoria areas, said B.C. Hydro and Power Authority and the municipalities with which it has transit franchises must, according to the franchises, first come to some agreement, or disagreement, before the PUC can step in.

"NOT PROPER"

"The commission has no jurisdiction to hear the authority's submissions at this time. It is not proper procedure to assume disagreement and hear evidence on that basis."

He said B.C. Hydro asked the municipalities in a June 15 letter to agree to the increases to 25 cents cash from 15 cents. Next day, Hydro wrote the PUC saying no agreement had been reached and a hearing should therefore be held, said Mr. Goldie.

RILING CITED

The municipalities' lawyer also said there is some question of whether the PUC has any jurisdiction in the matter at all because of the ruling of the late Chief Justice Sherwood Lett in the B.C. Electric case.

He said the judge had ruled that BCE, which owned the transit system before the government expropriated the company, was a single international undertaking and the province had no power to legislate in a field that came under federal jurisdiction.

"It is not a question of the PUC legislation being ultra vires in respect of the hearing," said Mr. Goldie. "It is a question of it being inapplicable to B.C. Hydro."

Johnson Faces Giant New Task

disappointment and anger, that no man in modern politics had given up so much for so little. Pieces of the silver of betrayal could be found by frantically illogical men in the transaction by which the Senate majority leader had put a great career in pawn, for the ifty honor of accompanying a Catholic presidential nominee toward a strongly possible November defeat.

Realism

Johnson had a strong streak of realism—a realism sometimes contemptuous not of honest, naked ignorance, but of the deliberate inability of pretentious men to see a fact for a fact. Now it was blended with an equally strong sense of compassion for those excessively loyal ones whose concern for his future both annoyed and touched him.

He had made an undoubted personal sacrifice. But, because of the sharp, edgy sense of private reticence that lies deep in him, he did not like it at all when others yammered as though a rationally generous act on his part was actually some oriental self-ammolation.

Impatient though he was, he could, however, understand the sentiments if not the lack of cold good sense, of those who were criticizing his submission to Kennedy as a surrender of the South.

Masterly

Back in Washington after the convention, he had dictated a masterly form letter which put the position as clearly as he knew how to put it:

Dear Friend: You are a little bit disappointed at the way the convention turned out, and so, I think, was everyone. For no man can go into a political convention and come out with everything he wants. For my own part, I feel strongly that no man ever fulfills an obligation by turning his back on a duty to which he is called. I neither sought nor solicited the vice-presidency, but when the invitation to join Senator Kennedy to the ticket came, I had the choice of turning tail and abandoning any opportunity for Texas and the South to have a voice in the carrying out of national policy or of repaying the confidence of the Democrats from all over the country who voted for me for president.

You have been a real friend, and it would be my strong hope that by the time this campaign is over, you can give the Democratic ticket the same confidence and support you so generously gave to me.

Middle Way

Long before this, and indeed all through his career, the new president had known, perhaps more than any other public man, the pains and danger of clinging to the middle way. For years, first as a congressman and then as a senator, he had been regarded by many in Texas—always a perilous many for his comfort—as far too liberal. Sometimes, to them, he was almost a "Socialist" or "Communist."

For years in other parts of the nation, notably in the liberal and urban east, he had meanwhile been denounced as a southern Tory and Bourbon. For years he had fought off these opposite pressures, seeing them as senseless clichés used by people with a passion for labeling things and an unbelievable incapacity to understand that in American politics there is not always pristine, simon-pure right and simon-pure, pristine wrong, with no decent ground between.

Different

This sort of oversimplification he had long borne, in his former offices, simply going on doggedly with a politics of reason, of rational compromise, trying for what is indispensable in a free, democratic society: an informed and reasonable consensus in a government which must, precisely, rest upon the consent of the governed.

Now, as President of the United States, he was in a quite different job, the job of ultimate responsibility over all. Would moderation, reason and political tolerance now prevail in this frightened, saddened, momentarily almost hysterical country, as the story of the assassination of a truly beloved president unfolded? It would if Lyndon Johnson could bring it about. And to this highest of all his immediate objectives he was resolved to bring all the resources of one of the most formidable political minds of our time—a mind so regarded by those most perceptive and candidly objective of all judges, the professional politicians in both parties.

Tangible

And he would put into play that intangible quality of talent which never can be created, no matter how long and sustained the effort.

If ever a man was born with the political gift, as a great violinist is born to the violin, that man is Lyndon Johnson. John F. Kennedy himself had told friends before the 1960 convention that no other aspirant for the presidency had Johnson's inherent capacity.

So, with a binding up of the nation's wounds, his first great aim, and with a conscious, grateful adoption of that phrase and purpose from the Lincoln tragedy of a century before, the aircraft approached Washington, perhaps the most urgent series of actions ever taken by a chief executive in time of peace.

First Thought

Deeply troubled for Mrs. Kennedy, with whom his relationship from the 1960 campaign forward had been one of easy and often humorously underplayed liking on both sides, he thought first of what he might do to make the days immediately ahead no more frightful for her than they must be.

First, he considered the arrangements for official mourning which were to make of Washington, on the three days to come, a city of sombreness far darker, far more piercing, somehow, to the human heart than even the period of mourning for the new president's great friend and mentor, Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Meantime, as the jet streams swept by the plane window, he wrote out his first statement as president to the people of the United States, which he would read when the aircraft landed in the dark darkness at Andrews Air Force Base near Washington.

'Not Old England'

Just Best Parts, Says Professor

By IAN ARROL

Victoria is not a little bit of old England.

So says visiting British professor John F. Danby, Dean of the Faculty of Arts and Professor of English at University College, North Wales, who is giving a course on Shakespeare at the University of Victoria Summer School.

This is the professor's first visit to the new world.

However, with reference to his comments on Victoria, he adds, with old world charm, "Victoria is not like England; it is an anthology of all the best parts of England."

The professor believes that the tempo of life here is an improvement over England. He refers to a poetry reading in the Art Gallery, in which he took part, which was arranged in two days time.

"In Britain such would have taken six weeks to arrange, to get curator and committee approval and have notices made up and sent out. Things move 30 times faster here," he says. Concerning his appreciation of the cultural life here, Prof. Danby says, "I am going to buy an Indian sweater before I leave."

More pertinent to his own specialized cultural interests, the professor had some comments to make on the university's Shakespeare festival, particularly the Carl Hare production of Midsummer Night's Dream.

"There are two Midsummer Night's Dream productions I have really enjoyed—last year at Stratford on Avon and this year in Victoria.

"The production here has the best faeries and choreography, the best costumes and grouping. I have seen for this Shakespeare play. I had never before seen trees suddenly become nymphs, and this delighted me," said the British scholar.

"Puck was wonderfully vigorous, rather than merely whimsical."

"I liked the treatment of Oberon, as a presiding, aloof genius. Only Titania is involved with Bottom and his group."

Prof. Danby was impressed also with the portrayal of Helena as a rather angry young woman, which he felt brought this character to life. Shakespeare's characters and Shakespeare's life are much a part of the life of the professor. He has written two books of criticism on the bard: Shakespeare's Doctrine of Nature and A Study of King Lear.

Two other books by him are Poets on Fortune's Hill and The Simple Wordsworth.

The scholar feels that Victoria University is an absolute natural for a really good pure arts, pure science centre. "Let Vancouver with its University of B.C. be the Rome; there is no reason why Victoria should not be the Athens," he declared.

Prof. Danby joins in the enthusiasm of Prof. Roger Bishop, head of the department of English at the university here, for the future of a summertime theatre festival each year.

Such might culminate in a strictly Canadian festival for our 100th anniversary in 1967 with Canadian drama, literature, and art, says Prof. Bishop.

Another hoped-for outgrowth would be a theatre on campus. And the visiting professor agrees with Prof. Bishop that for theatre life to grow, there must be more than one in town.

Paris Says 'No'

Minister Welcomes Topped or Topless

LONDON Reuters — A 57-year-old bachelor minister said he has no objection to girls in topless dresses attending religious services in his church, newspaper reports said here Sunday.

The broad-minded Anglican clergyman, Rev. Douglas White, is minister of the tiny village of Madford in the west of England.

Newspapers quoted him as saying: "I would welcome women in topless dresses to my church the same as I would welcome anyone in conventional garments."

"The human body is something good and wonderful just as all God's gifts are. The attitude of some people makes it appear almost as if parts of the human body are evil," he said.

"I suppose a woman in a topless dress would distract some of the men," he added, "but I believe they would get used to it."

PARIS (AP)—Paris fashion designer Louis Feraud Sunday heeded an official ban on topless attire for women in public and withdrew a revealing gown from his fall-winter collection.

The gown, a gold lame eye-opener for evening wear, features an open front that plunges to roughly mid-bosom. Worn by shapely Feraud model Madeleine Lerch of Montreal, the

Return Now Red Warning

DARJEELING, India (AP) — Radio Lhasa issued an ultimatum Monday to Tibetan refugees living in India to return to their homeland immediately.

The Communist Chinese-controlled broadcast monitored here warned that if they failed to return immediately it will be impossible to do so in the "foreseeable future."

Hoffa Moves East To Fight Verdict

CHICAGO (UPI) — Teamster boss James Hoffa met with his attorneys Monday to map plans to fight his conviction on charges of defrauding the union's pension fund.

The czar of the nation's largest union, saddled with his second federal court conviction in a year, summoned attorneys Daniel Ahern and Maurice Walsh to a meeting in a Teamster-owned building in downtown Chicago.

Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy was described as "really pleased" by Monday's verdict which found Hoffa, 51, and six other men guilty of conspiring to drain $25,000,000 in fraudulent loans from the Teamsters' rich pension fund. The state charged that $1,700,000 of the money went to further the interests of the defendants.

It was believed certain Hoffa would use every legal stratagem available to appeal the conviction and gain a new trial. He is already doing just that in fighting his earlier conviction in Chattanooga, Tenn., on jury tampering charges.

It was revealed that the jury of eight women and four men took 441 separate ballots during 17 hours of deliberation in reaching the verdict.

Not 'Crazy Logger' at All — More Work for Bob Hope

By TED GASKELL.

A movie star can't escape from Hollywood, even when he's fishing near an island, 1,200 miles from the film city.

Comedian Bob Hope found this out Saturday when seeking salmon off Stuart Island east of Campbell River, he and his guide spotted a plane.

"It's that crazy logger," said

Sugar Workers Call Off Strike

GEORGETOWN, British Guiana (Reuters) — Striking sugar workers have decided to resume work after a 161-day stoppage marked by widespread violence in sugar plantations and other areas. The strike was called by the Guiana Agricultural Workers Union over their demand for recognition by London-based sugar employers.

the guide. "He flies everywhere at all hours."

But it wasn't a "crazy logger," Bob Hope told reporters in the Empress Lounge Sunday afternoon.

It was a messenger bringing the script of his next film "I'll Take Sweden" which he starts working on with Tuesday Weld, Aug. 7.

The comedian was fishing from the 110-foot yacht Campana owned by Victoria Press Ltd. president Max Bell.

His party, which included his doctor, Dr. Tom Hearn; his dentist, Dr. Charles Pincus; and business associate Jimmy Rouch, caught six fish with Mr. Hope netting a fine 26-pound salmon which he will have mounted to hang in his dressing room.

He planned to leave Victoria Monday for two weeks at Tahoe for a holiday in which he'll also do some work.

But his holiday in Canada was purely for relaxation—apart from his glance through the film script—and he made the most of the good weather.

He played golf at Oak Bay Monday, and visited the Undersea Garden where he made a number of typical Hope quips.

Of the pugnacious rockfish: "He reminds me of Edward G. Robinson."

An octopus swimming by reminded him "of my studio negotiating a deal."

His farewell to a seal: "So long. See you when you're a coast."

In the Empress lounge, sitting in a quiet corner, he wasn't lost to passersby who recognized him. One lady told him he looked "exactly like my brother," a statement which seemed to call for a Hopeism but it didn't materialize.

He seemed a little tired but he snapped out of it and was immediately "on" when another lady asked him to pose.

The second before the camera clicked and flashed, his head went up, his eyes slid to one side and his mouth slipped into the sly, wicked little half-smile that's almost his trademark.

Before the flash died away he relaxed.

He talked a little of his future plans which includes TV work for Chrysler; the August movie; a second film "Eight on the Lam" and a third Road show—that makes eight—The Road to India with Bing Crosby.

"We'll film that in India," said Hope, adding, "Maybe we'll get India back" and chuckled his agreement when a reporter countered with "maybe we don't want it back."

Vote Urged for One Gas Price

VANCOUVER (CP) — A challenge to hold a plebiscite on a uniform gasoline price throughout British Columbia was issued Saturday by Cyril Shellford, Social Credit MLA for Omineca.

Mr. Shellford issued the challenge on the last day of current sittings here by a royal commission investigating gasoline pump prices throughout B.C.

The Social Credit MLA sparked the probe with charges that gasoline prices in northern and interior communities were excessive in view of the much lower prices in Greater Vancouver.

New B.C. Oil Find Confirmed

VANCOUVER (CP)—Kelly H. Gibson, president of Pacific Petroleum Ltd., said Monday the company has developed an other new oil field in north-eastern British Columbia. Mr. Gibson told interviewers following a company board meeting here that the new field, situated some 80 miles north-west of Fort St. John, is the first to be discovered in the area this year. "We drilled the discovery well last winter," he said. "Since that time we have had four successful follow-ups and we are drilling two more. The four follow-ups have an average allowable rate of flow of 100 barrels a day."

Six profit-making machines from B.C. Tel that "talk business" day and night

These modern pieces of equipment are typical of the many profit-making services now provided to businesses by B.C. Tel. Designed to meet the changing needs of progressive businesses, they can carry a multitude of information from hand-written messages and photographs to data and machine language of every kind.

A particularly useful feature is their ability to transmit information to unattended receivers. They speed your vital information to offices and other parts of the country, not only by day but also during the after-hour period while you sleep. Thus, the information is available for immediate action the following morning. Literally, these B.C. Tel communication machines talk business day and night.

The data speed (1) can flash a 5,000 word message coast to coast in five minutes flat. Teletype (2) speeds printed messages, reports and orders over private lines between two offices or many offices. It is also useful for preparing orders on printed forms.

In Victoria Please Dial 386-2211

B.C. TEL
BRITISH COLUMBIA TELEPHONE COMPANY

With TWX (3) you can "dial-n-type" private communications to over 60,000 other Canadian and U.S. businesses at speeds of 100 words a minute. The data set (4) enables you to transmit business machine language from many sources, punch cards, paper tape or magnetic tape all over conventional telephone circuits at modest rates.

Facsimile equipment (5) allows you to reproduce anything on paper across any distance, including messages, forms, diagrams and drawings up to 14 x 8 1/2 inches. The Electrowriter® (6) actually lets you "write by phone": messages, formulas, sketches, musical notations, etc. appear on the paper of the receiving instrument at the same instant as you write or draw them on the transmitting instrument — again, across any distance.

Designed to save your time and increase your communication efficiency, these services can make a big difference to your profit picture. Moreover, they cost considerably less than many people imagine. Call our Marketing & Sales Department today and have an experienced Data Communications Consultant suggest how we may help you with your operation.

Double Bogey Finish Still Good for $7,500

HARTFORD, Conn. (UPI)—U.S. Open champion Ken Venturi winged his way to California Monday with a $7,500 cheque in his pocket and the disturbing memory of a near-failure in winning the $50,000 Insurance City Open golf tournament.

AT THE 19th With Harry Young

Bill Wakeham was five strokes better than anyone else in the Esquimalt handicap open at Gorge Vale Sunday, but it wasn't enough to give him the top prize.

This went to D. Bateman, a Gorge Vale clubmate, who made good use of his 24 handicap to return a 66 net—eight under par.

Wakeham, despite two double bogeys, went round in four under par 70, and this, with his handicap of two, gave him second prize with a net 68.

Bill Hobbs, Cedar Hill, and G. Ferreira, Gorge Vale with net 70s shared third prize, and low gross by reversion went to Victoria's Jay Wilson with 76. Gary Smith was next with 77.

Although he has not been selected for the B.C. Willingdon Cup this year, Wakeham is still pondering about making an independent visit to Saskatoon for the Canadian Amateur Championship, held concurrently with the Willingdon.

Importance of the event to Wakeham is that it would be practically his only chance of making a place on the Canadian team to play in the World Cup matches at Rome in October.

Wakeham has been on the last three Canadian international teams, and he has done extremely well in all of them. He made his debut in the World Cup series of 1962 in Japan, when Gary Cowan took individual honors, and Canada, after leading the field for part of the way, finished second only to the U.S. in the team championship.

Wakeham last year also played in the Americas Cup at Des Moines and in the Commonwealth Matches in Sydney, Australia.

In Australia, Canada's team captain Bruce Forbes said Wakeham was the most dependable member of his squad.

The trip to Italy takes about three weeks, and the players have the opportunity of taking part in the Italian Amateur Championship which follows the World Cup matches on another Rome course.

Last week Bob Mayhew found himself credited with winning a cup for which he hadn't played. The former Canadian ambassador to Japan some time ago presented the Vancouver Island Seniors Association with a trophy for its "A" class golfers, and Bob appeared as the winner and not the donor in the report of the association's summer meeting.

The real winner was Don Buck of Royal Colwood with 144 net for the two rounds.

Another feature was the runaway victory of the Victoria Club for the Straith team trophy. George Sparling, 141; Harold Lineham, 146; Peter McIntyre, 147 and Bob Peers, 154, gave the Oak Bay swingers a total of 588 net, and a 16-stroke edge over the up-Island team which finished second.

What gone wrong with junior golfers in the Victoria area? Hardly any of them thought it worthwhile to participate in the recent junior college of golf headed by Stan Leonard, and the reports from the clubs are that the free lessons provided by B.C. Golf Association funds are being poorly patronized this year.

With two Victoria teenagers, Gary Smith and Ricky Kent, making places on the B.C. junior provincial team, the apparent lack of interest by other juniors is surprising.

Smith and Kent are among the youngsters who have profited considerably in the past by the various tuition facilities provided for junior development. The success they have achieved should act as an inspiration to other youngsters.

In Little League Playoffs

Three Winners Display Power

Greater Victoria's three entrants in the Vancouver Island championships all flashed impressive hitting power Sunday to win their area finals and qualify for playdowns starting Thursday at Jaycee Park.

Vancouver Challenges Baby Ruths

Evening Optimists, who won the first 13-year-old tournament for Babe Ruth League baseballers Sunday, will play Vancouver all-stars Wednesday at 6:30 at Royal Athletic Park for the unofficial B.C. championship.

Challenge was issued by Vancouver following Optimists' 6-3 victory over Victoria all-stars in Sunday's final at Royal Athletic Park. Harold Cliff won it with a four-hitter.

Towed-Away Car Damaged — Tourist

An angry Toronto couple claimed Monday that their brand-new car was damaged while being towed away from a rush-hour low-away zone.

Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Gertson said that their week-old car was left with a damaged transmission and scratched interior after it was towed away on Fort Street.

"It's the most expensive car we have ever owned, and now I feel as if I've got an old piece of junk," said Mr. Gertson.

Mr. Gertson planned to pursue the matter legally.

Cordova Bay Housing Clears Second Hurdle

A proposed $22,000,000 housing development project for Cordova Bay cleared its second hurdle when Saanich Council approved the scheme Monday.

Approval, recommended to council by the public works committee, is subject to several reservations suggested by engineer Neville Life.

They are that development will be in stages and that cost sharing be based on normal policy, the developers paying 50 per cent of the servicing costs per lot.

The project, proposed by San Juan Developing Co., is intended

Esquimalt High-Rise Approved

Agreement in principle for construction of $500,000 high-rise apartment block at Esquimalt Road and Wollaston Street was given by Esquimalt council Monday night.

Council, however, could not agree on whether or not a restaurant should be allowed on the top floor of the six-story building, and left final details of the plans to municipal engineer John Graeme and the public works committee.

M & H Holdings are putting up the money for the building, which will be the first high-rise apartment in Esquimalt.

Speller Making Bid for Council

Latest contender in the Saanich byelection race is Saanich police commissioner Lionel Speller, who is making his sixth bid for a council seat.

He has served on the police commission for less than one year.

Bennett Doesn't Elaborate

'New Look at Federalism' If Bank Charter Refused

By IAN STREET
Colonist Legislative Reporter

Premier Bennett said Monday that if the Senate rejects the application for a Bank of British Columbia charter "we will have to take a new look at the question of co-operative federalism."

He declined to elaborate, waving off reporters' questions with a brief: "I'm not going to explain that."

"PEOPLE ALARMED"

The premier said "the people of B.C." became alarmed at headlines in Vancouver newspapers last week stating that the government's bid had been delayed while a charter was approved for the Laurentide Bank.

This concern was demonstrated, Mr. Bennett said, by the number of phone calls and telegrams received at the premier's office from all over the province.

"The people take it (from the headlines) that the Senate wants to keep banking within the establishment," said the premier.

RESENTED

"This would be strongly resented by the people of B.C."

The premier then made his remark about taking a new look at the whole question of co-operative federalism.

Earlier he told reporters that the Senate hearing on the B.C. bank might reconvene Friday instead of Wednesday.

OFF TO PEACE

Attorney-General Robert Bonner will represent B.C. at the hearings while the premier travels to the Peace River dam site to open a new conveyor belt system.

Premier Bennett said yesterday he was "more confident than ever" that a charter will be granted to the Bank of British Columbia.

He said, as Mr. Bonner had earlier, that the decision by the government to purchase a minority share holding in the new bank was responsible for over-subscription of its $100,000,000 capitalization.

LEADERSHIP

It was up to B.C. to "show leadership" in creation of the new bank, the premier said, and he pledged the government would "never back out."

He termed the opposition by some members of the Senate committee, based upon a fear that if B.C. got its bank all the other provinces would want similar institutions. "Just a red herring."

NDP Support

VANCOUVER (CP) — T. C. Douglas, national leader of the New Democratic Party, said Sunday he would support Premier Bennett's proposed Bank of British Columbia.

"I see no reason why the people of the province couldn't own a bank just as well as could 30 millionaires in Montreal," he said.

Second Conviction Earns Jail Term

A man convicted last week on a charge of impaired driving was sentenced in city magistrate's court Monday to 24 days in jail after he admitted a previous conviction six months ago on a similar charge.

Counsel for Malcolm MacDonald, 2844 Scott, asked that his client be given psychiatric help while in jail in order to help him with his drinking problem.

Magistrate William Oster agreed the man had a problem in view of the fact that he had twice been convicted of impaired driving in a relatively short period of time.

Donald Esselmont, 3460 Veteran, was fined $300 in city court and had his licence suspended when he pleaded guilty to a charge of impaired driving. Court was told a taxi driver summoned police after trying to stop Esselmont's car on Courtney Street late Saturday. He admitted drinking "three, five, or maybe eight beers."

A pre-sentence licence report was ordered in city court for a woman who pleaded guilty to a charge of impaired driving. May Gordon, 487 Head, was seen driving erratically along Esquimalt Road early Sunday, and when stopped by police it was found she was impaired.

Roy Reginald Hudson, HMCS Naden, was fined $25 in city court for being a minor in possession of liquor. Hudson was mixing rum with root beer when he was checked in a car at the Oak Bay Avenue drive-in restaurant July 1. He was fined a further $10 for driving without a B.C. driver's licence.

It's Older-Model Cars They're After

Older cars will be the main target when B.C.'s mobile testing station begins operations Aug. 17 in Victoria.

Testing is to be handled throughout the province—outside of Vancouver, which has its own testing station—on a voluntary basis. No fee will be charged.

A spokesman for the motor vehicles branch said here yesterday that no one will be turned down if they bring a 1964 car for testing.

"There'll be some owners of new cars who want a safety inspection sticker as a status symbol," the official said.

"We won't turn anybody down, but we are asking motorists to be honest with themselves. We're more interested in checking, say, a family's second car that might be eight or 10 years old."

Officials said the branch is relying heavily upon community interest in making the voluntary scheme work.

Victoria Jaycees are sponsoring the program here which will be held on the Memorial Arena parking lot. City police will assist two mechanics who staff the $10,000 testing unit.

The testing unit can handle 200 or more cars daily, using portable equipment to check headlamps, wheel alignment, front end running assembly and brakes.

Arrangements have been made to conduct tests here until Aug. 29.

Owners of vehicles in which defects are found will be given a list and advised to rectify them. After work is completed they can return and receive a safety sticker.

The unit moves Sept. 1 to Nanaimo where it will be sponsored by the Jaycees in co-operation with Nanaimo Safety Council for a five-day stand.

From Sept. 8-18 it will be at Brentwood Shopping Centre in Burnaby and from Sept. 21 to 26 at Chilliwack

Mixed Blessing

Sun Brings Bikinis, Bush Fires

By KEN JOHNSON

It's that kind of weather.

The beaches are packed with bikini-clad sunbathers, the lakes are swarming with swimmers . . . and the fire suppression crew is on standby.

This is the kind of weather that brings the emergency call of "Bushfire!" booming over the radio at the Langford Ranger Station.

Most of the fires are in the smaller, nuisance class, but prolonged hot weather can bring the big ones too. And if they come, the young firefighters are ready.

With a crew of 10, headed by foreman Ian Frier of Vancouver, the Langford station is at the ready to stamp out any bush fires within an area of about 800 square miles.

With eight trucks and tons of equipment—shovels, axes, picks and hand and power pumps—the 10 men form the nucleus of a firefighting force covering the Saanich peninsula, out over the Malahat and west as far as Port Renfrew.

"At the moment it's dry enough for a lot of small nuisance fires," said Forest Ranger Ron Jones Monday.

"But if this hot weather stays with us for a couple of weeks it could bring some big ones.

Problem by September

"We may have quite a problem by September when all the green growth dries out and turns brown."

Main alert for the station comes from three lookouts, strategically placed atop Survey Mountain, Shepherd Mountain and Empress Mountain, all in the Sooke area.

Over the weekend there were three small bush fires in the Langford area and two Monday. Saanich had five, there were two in the city area and Esqui-mo and Oak Bay remained fire-free.

A spokesman for the Vancouver fire district said last week was the first bushfire-free mid-summer week in history.

The crew—ages range between 18 and 21—get their training at the camp during the no-fires periods. They learn how to use the $800,000 worth of equipment at hand and live on the camp, ready to turn out at any time of the day or night.

Most of them are students from the Greater Vancouver area.

May Call Volunteers

To keep in trim, they join in sports such as swimming—but they can't leave the camp.

"Of course, if there is a really big fire," said ranger Mr. Jones, "they form the main body of the firefighting force. But we have to get volunteers from the public to back them up."

Biggest part of the area covered by the station is logging land, forest or bush . . . land that would go up like a tinder-box once a small fire got under way in the hot sun.

Last bad outbreak of fires within the area was in 1961 when the station handled 120 bush fires—10 of them bad ones. In 1962 and 1963, the station was kept busy—but only with smaller, nuisance fires.

So if the law of averages has any play in the business of bushfires, the boys at Langford might see some big action before the summer's done.

Officer Hurt On Motorcycle

A city motorcycle policeman suffered a fractured knee when his bike collided with a car at Douglas and Kings at 11 a.m. Monday.

Const. Gerald Cox was treated at Royal Jubilee Hospital and later released. Driver of the car was Thomas D. Gibbons, 4986 West Saanich Road.

Sea Search Resumes at Dawn

One Body Located Two Still Missing

The body of one of three men missing from their wrecked 21-foot cabin cruiser was found Monday afternoon on a Strait of Georgia island close to the wreckage.

The probable death of the three men came after a week-end in which many search and rescue operations involving small craft were carried out along the B.C. coast.

NO SIGN

The body was found on one of the small Bell Islands off the eastern end of Mayne Island, about two miles north-east of Active Pass. There was no sign of the other two men. The trio was identified as Al Clarke, owner of the boat, A.

R. Sinclair and Frank Milligan, all of the Vancouver area. The body was not identified.

The three had left Boundary Bay, near the U.S. border, Sunday night for Vancouver.

HIT BY LOG?

Only parts of the cabin and hull were above water. Search officials said the cruiser may have struck a submerged log. Ships and planes continued a search for the two men until dark and will resume at dawn today.

The search is going on in an area from Gabriola Island to south of Active Pass and the shoreline of the Gulf Islands, Point Roberts and the Fraser River delta.

Air force planes, RCMP vessels, two Coast Guard cutters and naval divers are taking part in the search.

HOLED IN STERN

The divers reported the stern of the craft had been holed.

Two life jackets were on the vessel, which originally carried 10 life jackets. It did not have a dinghy.

Nine other small craft were also reported to have had trouble in the Vancouver Island area over the weekend, but no one was injured or missing.

Most of the craft were pleasure boats, although two fishboats which ran into trouble off the west coast had to be towed ashore by the Bandfield and Tofino Lifeboats.

The six, five from one family plus a neighbor, all aged between 3½ and seven, discovered the hard way that the tasty green seeds, which resemble garden peas, don't make good eating.

They were driven to hospital by their parents, emetics were administered, and the six went home well and wiser.

Two New Campus Buildings Will Cost $4,500,000

By TED GASKELL

Two new buildings are to be erected at Gordon Head campus at an estimated cost of $4,500,000, University of Victoria officials said Monday.

Architects have been commissioned and the program from which the sketch plans will be drawn were submitted to them Friday.

John Di Castri will design the Social Sciences building and the Education, Arts building is entrusted to A. J. Hodgson.

WANT SKETCHES SOON

The buildings must be completed by September, 1966.

Neither architect can say when the plans will be ready or when construction will start but university officials are hoping to see preliminary sketches soon.

The Social Sciences building will house psychology and geography departments and the Education, Arts building maths, classics, modern languages and other departments.

ABANDON LANSLOWNE

Erection of the two new buildings is another step towards consolidation of all university activities at Gordon Head and the abandonment of the Lansdowne campus.

This consolidation will be complete by 1966 but before then other facilities, for which no plans are yet made, must be provided at Gordon Head.

Decision to erect these two particular buildings was made after the faculty committee studied reports on the university's space requirements by consultants Baxter and Associates, who recently made a survey and discussed needs with university officials.

The buildings will be erected near the McPherson Library within the 900-foot quadrangle inside McPherson Way, the ring around the academic core of the university.

The ring road, now under construction, will replace part of Finnerly Road where it bisects the campus.

BUILDINGS SPOKEN FOR

Buildings at Lansdowne are already spoken for.

The Young Building is to become a Roman Catholic school, and the Paul Building will be purchased by the Greater Victoria School District for an administration centre as soon as it is vacated by the university.

Goodwill Directors Agree to Carry On

Directors of Goodwill Enterprises Monday night agreed to carry on employment and rehabilitation of handicapped persons despite the organization's loss in Saturday's fire at the Broad Street warehouse.

George Gray, manager, said that wages will be paid to those employees affected by the fire, for at least five weeks.

Temporary premises for storage and sorting have been arranged and the retail operation at the Yates Street store will continue as usual, he said.

New Group's Aim

Tell Them, Don't Censor

A group opposed to censorship of literature has been formed in Victoria.

Although the group does not condone smut publications, it feels censorship is the worse of the two evils, says Bruce Jenken, 1974 Oak Bay Avenue, in announcing the formation of what he and fellow freedomites call The Society for Human Rights.

OPPOSES CENSORSHIP

It was formed to oppose the recently announced idea of Canon Hilary Butler for citizens' control of objectionable newsstand material.

Mr. Jenken fears that certain church factions may become too powerful in any citizens' group that might be formed. "They might attempt increasingly to impose their will," he said.

CLEAN MIND

He feels it better to clean a child's mind than the shelves of the newsstands. "Obscenity is only in the mind of the observer. Tell the child everything," says Mr. Jenken.

The danger is in sending a child out in life without information. "If a child is informed when small, he will not have the morbid curiosity on which smut feeds."

GREAT ERA

Mr. Jenken pointed to a time in history when women's styles were as revealing as the topless bathing suits of today and when, he says, there was hardly any censorship.

"That was the Elizabethan period—the greatest period of exploration and progress in the history of the British Empire," he declared.

City Violinist To Play in U.S.

A Victoria girl is one of 50 students selected from B.C. and Washington to take part in the fifth annual High School Chamber Music Festival at Western Washington State College, Aug. 2-8.

The local student is Velma Ko, violinist, of 1231 Hillside.

Highlight of the festival will be a performance by the students, Aug. 6.

Sewage-Dumping Issue To Be Aired Aug. 13

A public hearing has been set for Aug. 13 to hear objections to the application of a land developer near Langford to empty treated sewage effluent into Mill Stream.

The application to the provincial pollution control board was made by J. L. Phelps, president of Phelps Development Co. Ltd. The 900-lot Phelps subdivision is located north of the Trans-Canada Highway near Mill stream Road.

The proposed sewage system could serve 200 or 300 homes although to date only approximately 42 homes, served by septic tanks, have been built on the subdivision.

A spokesman for the pollution control board said Monday that time and location of the hearing will be announced shortly.

Among those who will protest is the Greater Victoria metro board of health.

The provincial health department only last week closed an oyster lease in Esquimalt Harbor near the point where Mill Stream enters the sea because of pollution.

$54 Stolen

About $54 in coins and bills was stolen from Jimmie Little's Store, 2017 Quadra, over the weekend when thieves broke a transom window to gain entry to the building, city police said Monday.

Ottawa Home of Newlyweds

Salvation Army Citadel was the setting for a pretty ceremony uniting in marriage Lesley Lynne Spooner and Mr. Hugh John McCullough.

Lieut.-Col. John Nelson, assisted by Major John Morrison, heard the nuptial vows of the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leslie W. Spooner, 2530 Fernwood Road, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh M. C. McCullough, who travelled from Ottawa for the wedding.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was lovely in a floor-length gown of organza over taffeta with a lace bodice featuring a sweetheart neckline and lily-point sleeves. The full over-skirt was enhanced with a double edging of matching lace and a large fabric rose added back interest. The bride's bouffant veil misted to her shoulders from three fabric roses. She carried a cascade bouquet of pink roses and trailing ivy.

Pale turquoise brocade gowns, with scooped necklines and Empire-style waists, were worn by maid of honor, Miss Barbara Nelson, and bridesmaid, Miss Gayle McCullough, groom's sister. Sisters of the bride, the Misses Kathleen and Janine Spooner as flower girls, were gowned alike in pale turquoise dresses.

They all wore single nylon rose headpieces with net veils in tone and carried colonial bouquets of pink roses and carnations. The senior attendants wore pearl necklaces and earring sets and the flower girls wore initialed lockets, gifts of the bride.

Mr. Michael Spooner, bride's brother, was best man. Mr. Ernest Bent and Mr. Larry Corbett were ushers.

Mr. D. H. Nelson proposed the toast to the bride at a garden reception which followed at Olde England Inn. A three-tiered white cake, decorated with pink rosebuds, and flanked by silver candelabra, centred the bride's table. The Misses Sandra Corbett, Linda Cracknell, Shannon Frewing, Linda Mills, and Gwen Nelson, were serveurs.

Following a brief honeymoon up-Island the newlyweds will travel by car to Ottawa where the groom is stationed with the RCAF Band.

The forthcoming marriage is announced between Miss Gwyneth Elaine Judd, daughter of Mr. Earl T. Judd, 2780 Winstler Road, Langford, and the late Mrs. Judd, and Mr. Roderick Bruce Kingham, son of Col. and

Mrs. J. R. Kingham, 385 Upper Terrace. The wedding will take place Saturday, August 15, at 2 p.m. in St. John's Church with Canon George Riddle officiating. — (Filion-Simpson Studios)

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: Phyllis, our 14-year-old daughter, invited her girl friend to spend the night with her. The two girls decided that they'd like to have some blonde streaks in their dark brown hair. They went out and bought a bottle of extra strong peroxide and you ought to see what they did to themselves. When Phyllis and her friend showed up at the breakfast table this morning my husband and I were absolutely horrified.

The girls were sheepish and admitted that their hair didn't turn out the way they had hoped it would. The guest muttered, "I'm afraid my mother will kill me."

An hour later I received a phone call from the girl's mother. She was furious and said it was my fault. According to her, I should have kept my eye on the girls. The woman said she was taking her daughter to the beauty shop and getting her hair cut off—even if the child winds up looking like Yul Brynner.

Was it my fault? Should I insist our daughter have her hair cut off too—as punishment? I need your advice. —HAYOC IN HINSDALE.

Dear Ann Landers: Fourteen-year-old girls should not need policing. The woman is blaming you unjustly.

In my book your daughter has suffered enough. Rather than give her a prison hair cut which would only add to her humiliation, insist that she earn the price of a professional hair tint, and have her hair restored to its natural color.

Dear Ann Landers: My husband passed away in 1959. I am 58 years old and have been the constant companion these past two years of a widower who is 63. I enjoy this man's company a great deal, get along well with his married children, and his grandsons call me "Nanna."

Last week for no apparent reason, he said to me "I'll never marry again. Why should I? Everything is just the way I want it." I was deeply hurt because I was expecting a proposal of marriage at any moment. Things are NOT the way I want them. Ann, I would like to get married again—if not to this man, then to someone else. Shall I tell him how I feel? Or would it be prudent to wait a little longer and hope he will ask me to marry him on his own? —STILL PEPPY.

Dear Peppy: A man of 63 is on his own. He has been frank with you, and now you ought to be frank with him. Tell him you no longer care to date just for the fun of it and since he is not interested in marriage he'd better find another "constant" companion. If this doesn't produce orange blossoms give up already.

Dear Ann Landers: Byron and I have been arguing about something for weeks. We are

Cup Shower

Miss Betty Barton, whose marriage to Mr. Albert Jacobson will take place Aug. 8, was honored at a cup and saucer shower at the Gonzales Avenue home of Mrs. Wilfred Smith.

A large decorated cup and saucer held the many gifts. Pink rose corsage was presented to the bride-elect and a pink carnation corsage was given to her mother, Mrs. Edward Barton. Other guests were Mrs. J. Peart, Mrs. W. W. McGill, Mrs. J. Duxbury, Mrs. D. Pearmain, Mrs. L. Salmon, Mrs. A. Coleman, Mrs. M. Phillips, Mrs. S. Ralph, Mrs. J. Williams and the Misses Doreen, Dorothy and Vera Waller, Edna Middleton, Sharon Ralph, Sue Beck and Anne Ledson.

both 22 although you probably will think we sound like nine-year-olds.

Whenever Byron and I go to a party or a dance, he disappears the minute we arrive and I'm on my own. One of the big problems is that Byron is a terrific dancer and I am just fair. He always hunts up the shimmy queen of the crowd and never checks to see what I am doing. Believe me, I like him to dance with other girls but when he doesn't even dance one number with me I feel like a fifth wheel. I've told him he is inconsiderate but he says I am childish and demanding.

What do you say? —STRANDED.

Dear Stranded: This is a date? If you drove your own car you wouldn't need Byron at all. Give him his hat and tell him to date the shimmy queens.

Glitter Nets Hide Hair

PARIS (UPI) — Now that bouffant hair-dos are flattened, Paris wants to hide hair under everything from "crusader" helmets to glittering hair nets this winter.

Milliners showing their winter creations this week must have plotted with the hair stylists who stress the 1930-style of short, flat hair cut in contrast to the towering beehives and puffy coiffures of past years. A woman never could have worn these car-hiding hats with a fancy, "teased" hair-do.

Designer Jean Barthelet, a top milliner who got Elizabeth Taylor, among other celebrities, into hats, peered into museums of the Middle Ages before he showed his winter line Friday.

Many of his hats were over-size pillboxes with matching fabric hanging behind and tied under the chin. One was of turquoise wool mesh. Another with a small visor of checked beige-and-white wool had matching fabric hanging behind for windy days or open cars.

Another interesting combination was a beige astrakhan fur hat with fuzzy angora fabric drooping in back like a Saracen "crusader" helmet of chain mail and armor.

Another style reproduced in various colors and fabrics was reminiscent of an armored helmet with the visor open. It could have been a coal scuttle sitting before a London fireplace.

One "wig" of white fur completely hid the hair, as did many caps that started low on the forehead, 1930 style, and covered even the nape of the neck.

Hair nets are back. In several Paris hat shows, cocktail hats were of transparent and stiff net, often glittering with sequins. One "gypsy" hairnet for a short hairdo featured huge black paillettes.

Clothes that hid the parts 1930 style, and the usual upside down jumpsuits hats appeared in many shows. Fur hats were big, often with brims, and those Garbo-type slouch hats were featured by many designers.

Model Bald

PARIS (Reuters) — Paris fashion week opens with a bombshell Monday: A bald gig will model a beret.

The couturier launching this innovation is guitar-playing Jacques Esterel, already known for his fashion gimmicks.

To model the beret, made of white mink and worn on the back of the head, he ordered one of his beautiful, blonde models to shave her head smooth as an egg.

The shaving was done by exclusive hairdresser Alexandre. "This is an entirely new conception of beauty," a spokesman for Esterel said.

"Spectators will be in for a shock. We intended to keep this innovation a secret but a photograph of the blonde model has already got out."

When modelling the beret, the model's shaved skull will be exposed to the crown of the head.

Machines Do Job

MONTREAL (CP) — Secretaries of the future will have an easier job with some of the new typewriters being developed. Ruth Gallinot, international past president of the National Secretaries Association, reports there are new typewriters with eraser keys, others that type an entire line at a time and some that type when spoken to.

from the BEST KITCHEN

Lunch in a Jiffy

Make-Your-Own Sandwiches are the quickest and easiest to prepare... you set out the "fixins"... your family does the "work"! Offer cold meats, slices of cheese, lettuce, sweet onion rings, sliced tomatoes and mustard butter (just blend a little prepared mustard into soft butter). Crunchy "extras" like cucumber, green pepper, radishes... and a variety of bread and rolls will finish off your idea. Try: Add a pitcher of cold milk, fresh fruit in a basket and a plate of butter cookies... and wasn't that an easy meal to fix!

Sandwich "Fillers"

A few sandwich suggestions never go amiss in summer... so... how about teaming up ever-popular bacon and eggs by combining chopped hard cooked eggs, crumbled crisp bacon and salad dressing to moisten. Or try blending shredded Canadian cheddar cheese with chopped celery, some onion or pickle and enough mayonnaise or dairy sour cream to give spreading consistency.

And "Ditto"

Cottage cheese with added snips of parsley, thin radish rounds, grated carrot, bits of green pepper, or chopped ripe or green olives makes a good sandwich. Or try cottage cheese with chopped nuts, a little salt, and mayonnaise to bind. Sometime too, add grated raw carrot to cheese spreads for a good crunchy sandwich filler.

Lazy Susan Sandwiches

To make these summer specials, blend a little prepared horseradish into softened butter and spread generously on slices of wholewheat bread. Fill with slices of cheese, nippy or mild, topped with either ham, tongue or beef. Garnish with short carrot sticks, arranged like petals on top of each sandwich, with a ripe olive in the centre. Serve with plenty of milk and just see if you don't feel like a nice lazy susan yourself, while you and your family enjoy this lunch!

Winning Contract

By HOWARD SCHENKEN and RICHARD L. FREY

Do you trust your wife? Apart from higher things, it can be a paying proposition at the bridge table, as Bee Schenken showed in a tournament at Tucson, Ariz. Displaying proper faith, her spouse put her in a tricky situation. The opening bid by West set North, Howard Schenken, a problem. It is not usually desirable to double for a takeout with a void in an unbid suit, but there was no other way to show North's powerful hand.

As expected, South made the unwelcome heart response. North bid one spade, and now Mrs. Schenken bid the opponent's suit clubs. This was justified on the basis that, from his takeout double, North should be interested in more than one suit. If hearts failed to click, South's clubs might be of value. Over two clubs, North bid two diamonds, and when South continued with two no trump, it seemed to the North that the club bid had been based on a genuine intention. However, the opponent's bid of six clubs. Although West made the best lead, a trump, Bee Schenken bid the contract. Winning with the club ace, she finessed the spade jack, played the spade ace and ruffed a spade, dropping West's king. Next came ace, king and another diamond, declarer ruffing with the trump ace. Declarer finessed against West's club ten and conceded only a diamond trick in the end. (A Bell-McClure Syndicate Feature)

This was justified on the basis that, from his takeout double, North should be interested in more than one suit. If hearts failed to click, South's clubs might be of value. Over two clubs, North bid two diamonds, and when South continued with two no trump, it seemed to the North that the club bid had been based on a genuine intention. However, the opponent's bid of six clubs. Although West made the best lead, a trump, Bee Schenken bid the contract. Winning with the club ace, she finessed the spade jack, played the spade ace and ruffed a spade, dropping West's king. Next came ace, king and another diamond, declarer ruffing with the trump ace. Declarer finessed against West's club ten and conceded only a diamond trick in the end. (A Bell-McClure Syndicate Feature)

Winning Contract

By HOWARD SCHENKEN and RICHARD L. FREY

Do you trust your wife? Apart from higher things, it can be a paying proposition at the bridge table, as Bee Schenken showed in a tournament at Tucson, Ariz. Displaying proper faith, her spouse put her in a tricky situation. The opening bid by West set North, Howard Schenken, a problem. It is not usually desirable to double for a takeout with a void in an unbid suit, but there was no other way to show North's powerful hand.

As expected, South made the unwelcome heart response. North bid one spade, and now Mrs. Schenken bid the opponent's suit clubs. This was justified on the basis that, from his takeout double, North should be interested in more than one suit. If hearts failed to click, South's clubs might be of value. Over two clubs, North bid two diamonds, and when South continued with two no trump, it seemed to the North that the club bid had been based on a genuine intention. However, the opponent's bid of six clubs. Although West made the best lead, a trump, Bee Schenken bid the contract. Winning with the club ace, she finessed the spade jack, played the spade ace and ruffed a spade, dropping West's king. Next came ace, king and another diamond, declarer ruffing with the trump ace. Declarer finessed against West's club ten and conceded only a diamond trick in the end. (A Bell-McClure Syndicate Feature)

Fine Rodin Bronze Gift

By INA D. D. LINTHOFF

One of the most important recent gifts of the Art Gallery of Greater Victoria has been an anonymous one of a Rodin bronze, a study for his famous Penseur d'enter.

Though the final design is modelled in low relief, Rodin created numerous figures in the round, with innumerable studies of hands and feet and other bits of anatomy so that, when carrying the modelling to the extreme of finished detail, he could do so without loss of power.

This tremendous undertaking, in which 200 figures are incorporated, was the work of 20 years; and this particular figure study, Mercury emerging from a cloud, is part of the frieze of figures above the gate, depicting Dante's version of those who go down to hell.

Rodin stands alone among his contemporaries as a realistic exponent of the plastic art; he handled his medium, which was marble, as no other sculptor had done since the days of the Renaissance. In his hands, marble became pliant and alive.

French sculptors studied from the Greek rather than from life. Rodin's frank joy in the nude may be Greek but his psychological interpretation of man's spirit is essentially modern. The tumultuous emotion of his sculpture into which he wove the pattern of life is far removed from the calmness of Hellenic art.

He was in advance of his time and like all forerunners, suffered the stress and struggle of an artist who stands alone among his contemporaries.

If by modern standards, we may revolt against his too realistic rendering, there will still

Garden Notes

Each to His Own

By M. V. CHESNUT, FRHS

One very common error in gardening is to cram a lot of different flowers together in a single bed without paying any regard at all to their individual likes and dislikes.

As a result, we have natives of marshes and bogs, natives of dry, sandy plains, plants from shady woodland glades and flowers from high, sunny alpine meadows, all jostling one another in a sort of floral concentration camp, with none of them really happy. The real trick in growing superb specimens of any flower lies in giving each one the environment best suited to its needs.

The polyanthus primrose is a good example of what I mean. The wild primrose is a woodland plant, growing in forest glades and with a strong preference for the company of small-leaved, high-branched trees such as beech and birch.

In such a spot, the plants revel in full sun throughout the winter and early spring when the trees are leafless, but secure the sun-spotted or dappled shade necessary for their needs as the sun rises higher and the trees leaf out.

This flower has an unusual root system, and an understanding of how these roots function is most helpful in growing good polyanthus. When the seed germinates, the seedling starts out in life supported by a shallow temporary root of thread-like delicacy, from which root branches extend into the surrounding soil.

This first root system provides temporary anchorage for the baby plant but isn't a very good provider. It hasn't the "get up and git" to rustle up the food and drink needed, so all through its seedling stage the plant secures most of its food and moisture through its leaves.

For this reason, it needs rather moist, cool conditions and semi-shade at this stage. Spray-feeding, particularly with liquid seaweed, is most appreciated by all primulas in the seedling stage.

When the rough leaves are about an inch long, the plant puts out an "anchor" root from the base of each leaf. Upon reaching the ground (observe here the need for an open, loose soil surface) they plunge straight down in search of food and moisture.

These new roots are perennial, about as thick as a steel knitting needle, and without any branches. If any of these important roots are injured in transplanting, they never regenerate themselves but remain crippled stumps for life. They cannot function if their growing tips are lost.

When a young polyanthus is about two months old, with its perennial roots well started, an unusual phenomena occurs—the original, temporary root quits working and drops off. Then, along about mid-August, if soil conditions are right, the naked, knitting-needle roots start branching, pushing out a network of fine rootlets which creep in every direction, penetrating soil clods and crevices almost like the invading threads of a fungus.

These root hairs are foraging for nourishment—soil minerals—which are pumped up into the leaves for processing by photosynthesis—the chemical action of sunlight on the leaf surfaces. The finished product—a complete plant food—is returned in part to the roots to be stored for use in the production of next year's flowers.

If polyanthus are transplanted during this period, masses of these delicate foraging root hairs are torn away just at a time when the plant needs them the most—to gather the makings of next year's flowers. The plants will not die, even when transplanted in late summer, but because the important work of the feeding roots has been interrupted, the flowers next spring will usually be small and hopelessly wishy-washy in tint.

Timing is all-important in the growing of good polyanthus. If you gather your own seed, sow it as soon as it is ripe, which is usually in June. If you buy seed, sow in April or early May.

Transplant from the seed bed or coldframe around the end of July, before the perennial roots start branching, or better still if spacing permits, leave them until October, when the plumping up of the roots will be pretty well completed.

The plants like lots of leafmould in the soil, and earth should be drawn up around the crowns to encourage the production of perennial roots from the base of each leaf.

ART BUCHWALD Sorry (Sob) for Poor Chaps

Hope for Unwed Fathers

With all the bad news going on throughout the world last week there was one ray of hope emanating from England. A welfare council in Essex has announced that it has set up an agency to help unmarried fathers.

Roy Demery was appointed by the Moral Welfare Council of Essex, was quoted as saying, "Unmarried fathers must be helped, not neglected and looked down on."

"The fact that a girl is having his baby obviously weighs heavily on many a man, especially if he is not in the position to marry her. Often he is bullied into wedding her by angry parents. This should not happen if the couple don't love each other."

We hope that the Essex experiment is a success and a similar program will soon be adopted everywhere. The problems of unwed fathers has been ignored by everyone, while all the attention has been concentrated on the unwed mother. And yet for every unwed mother there is an unwed father somewhere—alone, friendless and needing sympathy.

Having spent four years in the U.S. Marines, three years at the University of Southern California and 14 years in Paris we have always been concerned with the plight of the unmarried father.

Friends have come to us in the darkest hours of the night and tearfully confessed that he had fathered a baby. All we could tell them was, "Forget it."

But this, unfortunately, wasn't enough. Many of them were filled with guilt and despair. Some wanted to run away, but they had no place to run to. A few were being pursued by angry fathers and brothers with shotguns and hid out with us until the danger was over.

And then there were desperate ones who had lost all reason and wound up marrying the girl. Had there been a welfare agency to help them none of it would have happened.

Now perhaps all this will be changed. If the Essex experiment is successful unwed fathers will have a new lease on life.

The way we see it is that when an unwed father finds out he's going to have a baby he goes to the agency and registers with them. A social worker will explain to him that there is no shame in being an unmarried father and he will be introduced to other unwed fathers who are in a similar boat. In this way he'll realize he is not alone.

Two months before the baby is born the unwed father will be sent away to a resort area where he can relax and enjoy himself without fear of being recognized or scorned by unfriendly neighbors and relatives.

When the baby is born the unwed father will be notified and he can return to his community with no one being the wiser. Perhaps he could be paid a small stipend from the agency until he gets on his feet again.

In time society may develop a different outlook toward unmarried fathers. But until they do we think this is the best solution to a problem that for too many years has been swept under the rug.

The Little World of SHEILAH GRAHAM

Abbe Brews Deal

LONDON (NANA)—Abbe Lane is in Rome and Abbe is not a girl to waste career time. She has been dining with Darryl Zanuck. And I expect to hear of a picture deal any moment for the ex-Mrs. Xavier Cugat. Anthony Quinn had founds and their two sons with him in London while he folded his clothes for High Wind in Jamaica. They are all in Jamaica now, I believe.

In England, the circus has suffered a decline. So the San Bronston film, Circus World, has been released as The Magnificent Showman. The original title for the John Wayne-Claudia Cardinale starrer was Circus. Then they found that Charlie Chaplin had the copyright. Incidentally, Chaplin flew to London to see daughter Geraldine dance. So obviously he is now quite reconciled to her career.

Sarah Miles will play Desdemona four times, at the end of the summer with Sir Laurence Olivier as Othello at his Chichester National Theatre. Sarah is starring in Those Magnificent Men in their Flying Machines, with her ex-husband, James Fox. You saw them both in The Servant. The engagement is off, but Jimmy is still Sarah's favorite escort around London. She says "I want a career now, marriage later."

While Stuart Whitman works in England, his wife and their children are summering in Honolulu, which is why people think they are rifting. Not a bit of it, says Mrs. Whitman. But she would be worried if she saw all the pretty young things in London. No man here has to be lonely.

Wait until you see Claire Bloom in The Outrage with Paul Newman and Laurence Harvey. The petite brunette is a blockbuster. She played the original role on Broadway with husband Rod Steiger. It was then called, Rashomon.

It's hard for a British actor to make the grade in the U.S. Laurence Harvey did with Room at the Top. Americans liked some of the films of Sir Laurence Olivier. They adore Peter Sellers, Margaret Rutherford, and the early films of Sir Alec Guinness. Never too much enthusiasm for Richard Burton, or Stewart Granger or Michael Wilding. But Ronald Culman made it with sound in the late 20s. And Chaplin's two-reelers will be shown as long as there are screens.

But here is a story to illustrate the resistance, to British actors in Hollywood. Someone on the Bel Air circuit—push private showings of movies—invited a star group, including Tony Curtis, to see a new English movie that had not yet been released in America. After two minutes of yawning Tony said peevishly, "What's with this boy with the spots on his back?" The host turned on the lights, apologized, and substituted another movie. The boy with the spots on his back was Albert Finney. The picture, Saturday Night and Sunday Morning—to be a great hit and to make Finney a star.

Balloons Logging Equipment

LONDON (CP)—A Canadian lumberman is in England shop ping around for balloons.

Big barrage balloons, that is. He wants them for his logging business in British Columbia and, happily, the scientists at the Aldermaston atomic weapons research establishment have a supply they no longer have any use for.

Chester Matheson was over here last year and bought two balloons on an experimental basis and also hired two balloon-handling experts.

His problem was the moving of great 12-ton logs down mountains and through dense underbrush. The top end always snagged onto something and often couldn't be budged even by an old army tank he bought.

Then he hit on the idea of using the balloons to lift the top end without taking the main weight of the log, with winches providing the power. It worked fine and now he wants more balloons.

The scientists originally had used the 81,000-cubic-foot balloons for mil-air nuclear explosion tests over Christmas Island. It was pretty hard on the balloons and so they had acquired several, which were left in their hands when the tests were cancelled and the balloons were no longer needed.

Announce New Healing Substance... Shrinks Piles, Checks Itch

Exclusive healing substance proven to shrink hemorrhoids... and repair damaged tissue.

A renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and speeds up healing of the injured, inflamed tissues.

One hemorrhoidal case history after another reported "very striking improvement." Pain was promptly and gently relieved... actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

Among these case histories were a variety of hemorrhoidal conditions. Relief even occurred in cases of long standing, and most important of all, results were so thorough that this improvement was maintained over a period of many months.

This was accomplished with a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal injured cells and stimulates growth of new tissue. Bio-Dyne is offered in ointment and suppository form called Preparation H.

In addition to actually shrinking hemorrhoids, Preparation H lubricates and makes elimination less painful. It helps prevent infection which is a principal cause of hemorrhoids.

Just ask your druggist for Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H Ointment (with a special applicator). Satisfaction guaranteed or your money refunded.

Carman Angus and friends in Amsterdam

Contest Winners Return

'Trip of a Lifetime' Ended All Too Soon

Mr. and Mrs. Carman Angus came back from Holland possessing souvenirs and a desire to do it all again.

"But we could never have another trip like that," said Mr. Angus, winner of the main hidden-weight prize in the 1963 Colonist King Fisherman contest of an expenses paid tour of Holland for two via Canadian Pacific Airlines.

"It was the trip of a lifetime," sighed Mrs. Angus, "the sort of thing you dream about but never expect."

HOPE FOR OTHERS

Everyone dreams, though, so if you're spinning castles in the air right now, you can hope you win the 1964 hidden-weight prize in the contest—a CPA tour of New Zealand.

"The Canadian Pacific people just couldn't do enough for us," said Mr. Angus. "The service was wonderful, and the trip both ways over the polar route was smoother than riding in a car."

"But it was so exciting, and there was so much to do—it'll take a while for all this to sink in."

"Right now everything's just a jumble," said Mrs. Angus, still excited from the tour which saw them take in Switzerland as well as The Netherlands.

The 12-day trip left both of them with a kaleidoscope jumble of impressions and pictures that will last a lifetime.

Flocks of starlings filling the clear air of Zurich, Switzerland, at sunset; A forest of cranes and derricks in the Rotterdam shipyards;

A museum full of Rembrandt paintings and other old masters;

VIEWED ALPS

The view from a cable-car high on a Swiss mountain, with the massive Alps in the distance;

Ten thousand rosebuds, each individually wrapped in cellophane, ready for shipping at a Dutch flower auction;

The constant dredging and pumping as the Dutch reclaim still more land from the North Sea;

And the vastness of Canada, spread out in sunshine beneath the wings of their CPA jetliner high over the Canadian shield.

The holiday took in most of what is interesting in The Netherlands, and then they capped it with a two-day flight to Switzerland.

GONE FISHIN'

"We would have loved to stay longer," said Mrs. Angus. They came back, and where was Carman Angus one day later?

Out fishing, naturally. "And I didn't get a thing," he muttered. "We should have stayed longer."

On Capt. Cook Rotarians Hear Historian

A look back in our history, 200 years ago, was given by A. C. Conning, manager of the Mayfair Shopping Centre, Monday night to the Douglas Rotary Club.

Mr. Conning was with the Royal Navy for 27 years and his hobby is history. He outlined to Rotarians the story of Capt. James Cook and his voyages of discovery in these waters close to 200 years ago.

SEA-GOING SCIENTIST

"Cook was probably the first of the great sea-going scientists; a man self-taught without the benefit of text books or extension courses."

"He was a classic example of poor boy makes good, of a man who pulled himself up by his bootstraps," said the former lieutenant-commander.

"He inspired others to voyages of discovery in these waters. Among his pupils were Captain George Vancouver and Captain Henry Roberts, after whom Point Roberts was named. The famous Captain William Bligh was another of his pupils."

Greeks See Raid Threat

NICOSIA (UPI) — The Greek-Cypriot interior ministry Monday broadcast warnings to civilians to prepare air raid shelters as protection against possible Turkish bombing attacks.

The warning was broadcast in Greek over Cyprus Radio about three hours after Greek-Cypriot President Archbishop Makarios fled to Athens for crisis talks.

Makarios said he would discuss with Greek Premier George Papandreu the "oppressive measures" to impose a solution to the crisis outside the United Nations.

NO ENTRY

The Greek-Cypriot government rejected a United Nations appeal for freedom of movement for its peacekeeping forces on this bitterly-divided island. In reply to the plea last Wednesday from UN secretary-general Thant, Makarios said:

"Where requirements of absolute security on matters of state defense and security are involved, it is not possible to permit entry of UN patrols."

Thant's appeal followed refusal of Greek-Cypriots to allow UN troops within the harbor area at Limassol. Trucks heavily laden with what appeared to be arms have been sighted leaving the closely-guarded dock-side.

13 Miners Trapped In French Cave-In

CHAMPAGNOLE, France (AP) — The collapse of an underground gallery deep in a limestone mine entombed 13 men Monday, a mine official said.

Faint tapping picked up by a microphone gave new hope that the sealed-in workers were still alive.

DEAD-END TUNNELS

First official reports said 16 men were entombed, but the mine official said a recheck showed 13 were below when the rock fall occurred.

The collapse of a 1,600-foot section cut off the workers inside 30 miles of dead-end tunnels.

Distressful relatives watched as rescuers dug by floodlight to sink a ventilation shaft into an intact portion of the mine.

The supersensitive microphone and earphone equipment arrived at the scene late Monday. Specialists said they detected what seemed to be blows by a pickaxe into a wall. The sound came

MP Offers to Get Banks

'I'll Bring Him Back by Ear'

OTTAWA (CP) — A former RCMP officer offered in the Commons Monday night to haul Hal Banks back to Canada "by the ear."

Jack Bigg (PC-Athabasca) said the former president's hold on the Seafarers' International Union of Canada and his criminal activities are just examples of poor labor laws and poor planning.

"I'm not afraid of Hal Banks," he told the Commons. "If you want him back here, give me the job. Give me a leave of absence and I'll bring him back here by the ear."

And, said Mr. Bigg, a lawyer and former RCMP officer in Saskatchewan, if Mr. Banks is as bulky as Douglas Fisher (NDP-Port Arthur) "I'll get some of my pals and skid him in here."

Banks is being sought to serve a 30-day jail term in Quebec for contempt of court. There have been reports that he is in the United States.

Mr. Bigg, arguing in favor of a federal labor code ensuring the secret ballot in all union votes and a right-to-work clause, said the public is "fed up with paying us (MPs) $18,000 a year for sitting around here chewing the fat and gossiping."

"I'm not sure I want your election that you're always throwing at us," he said to the Liberal benches.

"I was earning an honest living when I came down here."

Fahey is donating proceeds of his book, Pacific War Diary—1942-1945, to a town in south India for construction of a Roman Catholic church.

Election Time All at Once?

OTTAWA (CP) — The unsettled political situation in Canada and the constitution of the United States may be steering the two countries on a collision course, so far as election campaigns are concerned.

Observers see a distinct possibility that Canadian voters may be called to the polls this autumn at about the same time U.S. voters cast their ballots for Congress and the presidency.

While there may only be an outside chance that a Canadian election will be called for Monday, Nov. 2, political sources here shudder at the thought of the conflicting stresses and strains that would be involved. The U.S. election, by law, is Tuesday, Nov. 3.

With U.S. newspapers, magazines and radio and television broadcasts spilling over into Canada, the average Canadian could be swamped with the vote appeals of Lester B. Pearson, John G. Diefenbaker, Lyndon B. Johnson and Barry M. Goldwater, not to mention T. C. Douglas, Robert Thompson, R. C. LaFontaine and any minority candidates who enter the presidential race.

NOT THIS CENTURY

Not since the turn of the century, when Sir Wilfrid Laurier's Liberals were comfortably in power in Ottawa, have there been Canadian and U.S. elections within a month or so of each other. The closest was in 1940, when Canadians voted in March and Americans in November.

Liberal party sources concede that a protracted opposition filibuster could force a vote.

SAIGON (Reuters) — The United States will pour more men and equipment into South Viet Nam to bolster the struggle against the Communist Viet Cong guerrillas, it was announced here Monday.

The South Vietnamese government announcement said the U.S. would send more military and civilian advisers plus more support facilities.

POLICY UNCHANGED

But increased aid does not mean there has been a change in U.S. policy, the government said.

The announcement followed two hours of talks between South Viet Nam's premier, Maj.-Gen. Nguyen Khanh and U.S. Ambassador Gen. Maxwell Taylor and his deputy, Alexis Johnson.

It confirmed earlier reports from Washington that President Johnson had ordered a step-up in the war against the Viet Cong.

16,000 ALREADY

The U.S. already has about 16,000 men in South Viet Nam, serving as advisers, as training personnel for local forces and as combat advisers in action against the Viet Cong in the field.

Washington reports said Johnson has decided to send between 5,000 and 6,000 more military personnel in a major effort to crush the Viet Cong.

ATTACKS?

U.S. officials have not ruled out attacks on North Viet Nam, which backs the Viet Cong, but they have said that the war in South Viet Nam has not reached such a critical point.

(In Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia, South Vietnamese defence minister Maj. Gen. Tran Thien Khiem said there is a strong underground movement in Communist North Viet Nam ready to launch full-scale sabotage there.)

'WAIT, SEE'

(He told questioners South Viet Nam would "wait and see" whether to start a full-scale attack on the north in support of this movement.)

The government announcement said the increase in the number of advisers would take place immediately.

Peace Before Talks

MOSCOW (UPI) — British Foreign Secretary R. A. Butler said Monday night he would not agree to a Soviet call for a 14-nation Geneva conference on Laos until pro-Communist forces there acceded to a cease-fire and withdrew from positions they have seized from the neutralists.

Butler laid down the British conditions for the conference shortly after arriving here for talks with Soviet Premier Khrushchev on the growing crisis in Laos and Southeast Asia. Britain and the Soviet are co-chairmen of the 1962 and 1964 Geneva accords guaranteeing Laotian neutrality.

The Soviet Union Sunday said a new Geneva conference, attended by the 14 nations which signed the 1954 agreement carving up what used to be French Indochina, should be held next month.

Accused Hangs Himself In Cell

VANCOUVER (CP) — The body of Alex Carlson of Vancouver was found hanging in his cell at Oakalla prison Monday, three days after he was committed for trial on a charge of attempting to murder his wife.

A prison official said Carlson, 32, an unemployed handyman, used a bed sheet to take his own life.

Magistrate Lorne Jackson had committed Carlson on Friday for trial after hearing evidence that he shot his wife, Rose, twice in the back with a rifle at a downtown hotel.

The couple separated in mid-June.

Plea Goes Unanswered

FAIRBANKS, Alaska (AP) — A young Fairbanks woman said Monday she watched her soldier fiancé drown Sunday while a group of men ignored her cries for help.

Luanne Saario, 21, and Bernard L. Snyder, 18, were picnicking when he decided to take a swim.

Snyder developed trouble in the pond and Miss Saario tried to reach him but couldn't. "Then I asked some people to help but they just stood there."

Riotous Weekend

Troops Stand Ready For New Outbreaks

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (UPI) — National Guard troops with rifles and bayonets ringed Negro sections of the city today, prepared to move into action if needed to help quell new outbreaks of racial violence blamed for four deaths during the riotous weekend.

Gov. Rockefeller, who sent the troops here, flew into the city Monday afternoon unannounced to inspect the riot damage and consult with police and national guard leaders on the tense situation.

City manager Porter H. Omer renewed a citywide curfew but set its hours from 8:30 p.m. to 6 a.m. The weekend curfew had extended from 8 p.m. to 7 a.m. The new curfew will remain in effect indefinitely.

A ban on the sale of liquor, effective throughout Monroe County, was continued through 5 p.m. Tuesday. The request was made by city officials and approved by the State Liquor Authority.

Three courtrooms were required to handle the arrangements of some of the estimated 755 persons arrested during three days.

The Professional

Lyndon B. Johnson

By William S. White

Second of a series.

Much that is too complicated has been written of the early morning-after of that urgent night at Los Angeles when John F. Kennedy at last defeated Lyndon B. Johnson for the Presidential nomination. What really happened was quite simple.

Master Politician in New Role Faces Test of Moderation, Reason

Kennedy, recognizing the fact that his nomination had been made possible only by the support of iron-handed urban — and largely Catholic — Democratic leaders from the North and East, told Johnson just about this:

"You have long declared for moderation and mutual tolerance in the party — for a time when there would be no North, no South, no East, no West but one united party and country. If you are not on the ticket with me, that ticket is going to lose, and you know it."

Some of Johnson's oldest friends, the late Speaker of the House Sam Rayburn

among them, found it impossible to understand how perhaps the greatest master over of the most difficult of all political forums, the United States Senate, should now sit lower at the party table than one of the most junior members of that body.

These urgently pressed their advice: "Lyndon, don't do it. You can't do it. Just stay on as majority leader of the Senate."

Johnson heard them out; he did not reflect long. He agreed from that moment onward to use his sword under Kennedy's command. And use it he did, notably and effectively in the South, and most notably and effectively among Protestant groups everywhere which were in fear of Kennedy's religion.

There was an inevitable outcry from Johnson's supporters, from all over the country but notably from his native South. Many honestly and deeply believed that the ablest man had unwisely accepted a subordinate place to a much younger, much less experienced, and much less tried and trustworthy political campaigner and leader.

There was harsh and sullen hurt in the South; even mutters that "Lyndon has sold out."

It was said by some, in their

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (UPI) — National Guard troops with rifles and bayonets ringed Negro sections of the city today, prepared to move into action if needed to help quell new outbreaks of racial violence blamed for four deaths during the riotous weekend.

Gov. Rockefeller, who sent the troops here, flew into the city Monday afternoon unannounced to inspect the riot damage and consult with police and national guard leaders on the tense situation.

City manager Porter Homer renewed a citywide curfew but set its hours from 8:30 p.m. to 6 a.m. The weekend curfew had extended from 8 p.m. to 7 a.m. The new curfew will remain in effect indefinitely.

A ban on the sale of liquor, effective throughout Monroe County, was continued through 5 p.m. Tuesday. The request was made by city officials and approved by the State Liquor Authority.

Three courtrooms were required to handle the arraignments of some of the estimated 755 persons arrested during three days.

The Professional Lyndon B. Johnson

Second of a series:

Much that is too complicated has been written of the early morning-after of that urgent night at Los Angeles when John F. Kennedy at last defeated Lyndon B. Johnson for the Presidential nomination. What really happened was quite simple.

Master Politician in New Role Faces Test of Moderation, Reason

Kennedy, recognizing the fact that his nomination had been made possible only by the support of iron-handed urban — and largely Catholic — Democratic leaders from the North and East, told Johnson just about this:

Some of Johnson's oldest friends, the late Speaker of the House Sam Rayburn

among them, found it impossible to understand how perhaps the greatest master ever of the most difficult of all political forums, the United States Senate, should now sit lower at the party table than one of the most junior members of that body.

These urgently pressed their advice: "Lyndon, don't do it. You can't do it. Just stay on as majority leader of the Senate."

Johnson heard them out; he did not reflect long. He agreed from that moment onward to use his sword under Kennedy's command. And use it he did, notably and effectively in the South, and most notably and effectively among Protestant groups everywhere which were in fear of Kennedy's religion.

There was an inevitable outcry from Johnson's supporters: from all over the country but notably from his native South. Many honestly and deeply believed that the ablest man had unwisely accepted a subordinate place to a much younger, much less experienced, and much less tried and trustworthy political campaigner — and leader.

There was harsh and subtle hurt in the South; even matters that "Lyndon has sold out."
